By DAVID PIRILLO
PITTSBURGH — Buc fever broke out into an epidemic here yesterday afternoon, sweeping from Three Rivers Stadium to downtown and Seventh ave. Everybody, everywhere, from the cop at the entrance, to the waitress in the lounge were screaming their approval.

Whistles, sirens and ticker tape welcomed back the National League pennant after a ten-year absence. Even before Rich Hebner fielded the last ground ball and threw over to first baseman Bob Robertson, fans jammed the aisles anticipating the inevitable.

When Robertson clamped that big right foot on the bag, it was a human tidal wave of half-crazed kids and fanatics pouring out on the field. Players, photographers and groundsmen were tossed around in the flood like a ball. It was like everybody was on a psychedelic trip, high on the Pirates.

It took five minutes before the entanglement of fans, players and etc. could escape the snarl and return to a mini-riot in the locker room.

Pittsburgh was ready for the pennant, and its backers were ready to help celebrate. Champagne, beer and milk ran over the players in the victorious locker room gesture. Nobody, not even General Manager Joe Brown escaped the pranksters, in goodwill, of course.

National television beamed out the titillation of 24 exuberant young men. As Manny Sanguillen said in broken English, "Mon, it's de greatest."

From corner to corner the spacious locker room was lined with inquiring bystanders. Stargell was in one spot saying, "I don't care if Paul Bunyan pitches for Baltimore," referring to the team's four ace 20-game winners, "we're ready for them. I don't say that we're better, but we'll be ready."

Danny Murtaugh was on the stand being interviewed by NBC's Sandy Koufax, agreeing that it was "justly deserved", and what a fine and dedicated organization he was with.

Rowdism continued for at least an hour and a half. Richie Hebner, Tuesday's hero in the second win, found himself sharing the same role in the clincher. "It was an inside curve ball," Hebner explained, "I waited on it and swung."

"Does this make you feel any better after a rather trying season, Hebner?" a newsman bellowed in the typically uncouth manner that quite a few of the fourth estate were employing. Cheerful as ever, he replied, "I'd have to say it does," inserting later in his statement, "for a lot of things."

Con genial Al Oliver was replaying the sixth for the news media, the inning in which he hit the climactic three-run homer. "I said to myself, 'Scoops'—that's my nickname they walked Stargell for you the last time, it's time to do something... wait for the pitch you can handle." He did, a waist-high fastball inside on a 2-1 count, and towered it into the seats in right field.

Good, lengthy interviews were scarce with all the horseplay. Bruce Kison paused long enough to assure this reporter that it was a curve, fastball and change of pace that was setting the fiercest of Giants down from the third inning through two-thirds of the seventh. The leather-lean rookie, a baby-faced kid of 21 years

TIDIOUTE WOMAN HONORED AT DINNER

Mrs. Catherine Christy of Tidioute last night was named recipient of the Don Neal Award for outstanding contribution to Kinzua Country. The presentation was made at the annual banquet of the Kinzua Dam Vacation Bureau at the Three Flags Inn. Some 150 persons heard Secretary of Commerce Walter G.

Businessmen Must Become Politically Involved In Future Of Pennsylvania

By BOB CLEVER
Pennsylvania's Republican secretary of commerce serving in a Democratic administration last night urged businessmen in the tourist industry of Kinzua

Country, and every businessman in Pennsylvania, to exert political pressure in Harrisburg for favorable legislation at least equal to the pressure now being exerted by unions, teachers, schools, welfare and the unemployed.

The Honorable Walter G. Arader, speaking to some 150 members and guests of the Kinzua Dam Vacation Bureau at its annual banquet at the Three Flags Inn, said that tourist promotion and industrial development are two of the main arms of his department. He said that there must be a spokesman in Harrisburg for businessmen if his department is to do the best job it can do for them and if there is to be established in Pennsylvania a desirable business climate.

Secretary Arader spoke at the dinner during which Mrs. Catherine Christy of Tidioute was honored as recipient of the Don Neal Award for Outstanding service to Kinzua Country.

In receiving the award established three years ago in honor of Don Neal of Warren, outdoor writer, Mrs. Christy was cited for her efforts to promote Kinzua Country and tourism in the area even before there was a Kinzua Dam and a Kinzua Dam Vacation Bureau. She is one of the founders of the KDVB and has served as secretary since its formation as an affiliate of the Warren County Chamber of Commerce, she serves on the Northwestern Pennsylvania Regional Development Commission, has been since its inception a staunch supporter of Tidioute's Pennsylvania Championship Fishing Tournament, has worked toward the betterment and beautification of Tidioute and Warren and Forest Counties, has been credited with providing the stimulus in Marienville which led to the Senate Passes $21 Billion Military Procurement Bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate blocked an effort Wednesday to force a new presidential election in South Vietnam and headed for passage of the $21-billion bill authorizing funds for military weapons and research.

The bill had been under debate for less than three weeks, the shortest time the arms measure has taken to pass the Senate since before Pentagon critics began mobilizing against it in 1969.

By a vote of 60 to 25, the Senate rejected the amendment by Sen. Joseph M. Montoya, D-N.M., to shorten the six-month deadline for U.S. withdrawal voted earlier by South Vietnamese President Nguyen Van Thieu fails to call a new election by Feb. 3.

Montoya accused the United States of partial responsibility for Thieu's unopposed re-election last Sunday, asserting that "In the name of political expediency, America has openly assisted South Vietnam's President Thieu in stifling democracy."

Then, on a 44-38 tally, it rejected a move by Sen. J.W. Fulbright, D-Ark., to block a provision in the bill that would break the United Nations embargo on trade with Rhodesia and permit U.S. imports of strategically important chrome ore.

The Nixon administration had backed Fulbright's effort, indicating through Senate leaders it wouldn't use the authority anyway.

Once more, the military procurement measure, which authorizes projects for which ac-

WARREN'S ACTION PLAN—Part 2

Business District Key To Survival

By PAUL REICHAFT

As was pointed out yesterday, the "Action Plan" segment of the borough's proposed planning program is "the heart" of the planning commission's comprehensive package.

Most planners agree the key to a vital and prosperous community is its central business district (CBD). If the CBD begins to die the community will lose part of its tax base. When this happens services provided by the municipal government start to lapse and before long its economic superstructure shows signs of crumbling.

For instance, suppose that some time in the future a major employer such as New Process Company found that traffic congestion in the borough had made it economically impossible to continue trucking their goods.

They appealed to the borough government for assistance—only to find that the community is broke because since the merchants moved to fancy malls on the outskirts of town they've lost a lot of tax income and therefore can no longer afford to solve traffic problems or improve the streets as deemed necessary.

Frequently when industries face a problem like this they look toward greener pastures. Statistics prove that civic-minded industrial concerns flock to civic-minded communities. They want services but they also want to share the cost of these services with businessmen and other industries.

At best an industry like New Process would move their whole operation out of town, perhaps to the neighboring township that also has the fancy mall. This would at least keep a lot of Warren residents employed.

In many towns, however, the industry has chosen to move into the next state and hire all new people to do the same old jobs. Industries lose money moving but it can be counted as a tax loss so it's not really that grand an undertaking.

Meanwhile back in Warren there are fewer businesses and fewer industries to help the residents pay for the government services. Everyone will be assessed more so that the borough can balance its bankbook.

More people will be unemployed and unable to pay these taxes. We're not saying that this picture of a dying community will happen in Warren. If the CBD dies, though, it's more than an even bet that much of it will occur shortly thereafter. It's happened in dozens of other towns, and there is no reason why it couldn't happen here too.

The defeated planning proposal, as outlined by the borough's former planning consultants Kendree and Shepherd, would be approached in the following manner:

1. An economic report and related analyses would be drawn up

House Passes Bill To Cut Business, Individual Taxes

WASHINGTON (AP) — Without even calling the roll, the House passed Wednesday a bill to cut business and individual taxes $15.4 billion over the next three years.

It was a victory for President Nixon. Even though the measure was modified to give individuals more and business less than he recommended, it remains a key part of his new economic program.

It was a defeat for powerful segments of organized labor. Union chiefs had staged a last-minute blitz against the measure, contending it still is a bonanza for business.

All individual taxpayers would benefit at least a little under the measure. Those at the poverty level and for some distance above it would receive significant tax cuts. Automobile buyers would save an average of $200 on new cars purchased.

Business would get a tax subsidy on new equipment purchased. This incentive to stimulate orders and employment and to make U.S. plants more competitive is a major administration objective.

Hoping to speed the measure to enactment by early November, the Senate Finance Committee opens hearings Thursday. However, strenuous efforts to reshape the tax relief are expected on the Senate floor.

Some of the effects the bill would have on individuals:

By next year, individuals with no more than $2,050 income or families of four with no more than $4,300 would have no income tax to pay.

A typical individual earning

$3,500 would save $24 on this year's tax, $59 on next year's $51 on 1973 earnings. If he earned $15,000, his savings would be $7 this year, $13 next year, none thereafter.

A married couple with no dependents earning $7,500 would save $24 this year, $67 next year, $33 in 1973. But such a couple earning $15,000 would save $7, $13 and nothing in the corresponding years.

For a family of four at $7,500 income the savings would be $29, $77 and $30.

For such a family at $15,000, the savings would be $22, $44 and nothing, and at $25,000 they would be $28, $56 and nothing. A speedup of increased personal exemption, already to be staged in under present law, accounts for the bulge of savings in 1972.

According to over-all estimates, individual income taxes would be cut by about $2 billion this year, $5 billion in 1972 and $2.7 billion in 1973.

Business would have a slight tax increase this year—$350 million, but reductions of $2.75 billion in 1972, $3.27 billion in 1973 and more later.

For individuals, the bill would increase the personal exemption from $650 to $675 this year, and provide that a further increase to $750 take effect Jan. 1, instead of a year later.

The minimum standard deduction that helps low-income persons would be slightly increased this year by elimination of a phase-in provision, and would be raised next year from $1,000 to $1,300. The bill also would speed up to 1972 the 15 per cent standard deduction.

The 7 per cent excise tax on automobiles would be repealed, retroactively to Aug. 16, 1971, and the 10 per cent tax on trucks up to 10,000 pounds would be repealed effective Sept. 23, 1971.

Thieu's Opponents Challenge His Election

SAIGON (AP) — Opponents of President Nguyen Van Thieu asked the Supreme Court Wednesday to overturn results of Sunday's election that election officials claimed gave the unopposed president an overwhelming vote.

The petition to the court came only hours after Vice President Nguyen Cao Ky assailed the election as "brazenly rigged" by Thieu.

The petition was filed by Trinh Quoc Khanh, chairman of the Committee Against Dictatorship, labor leader Nguyen Ngoc Loi, and two Saigon city councilmen, Duong Van Long and Ha The Ruyet.

It challenged the legality of the election's organization by the Interior Ministry, the voters' lack of choice, and the way in which votes were tabulated and the final results determined.

The four men, signing the petition as private citizens, asked the court to accept their petition, to declare that the election was irregular, and to nullify the results.

The court must rule on the validity of the election and the returns by Oct. 26.

"We are appealing to the conscience of the judges," Khanh said. "I hope the court will render a proper verdict."

Ky issued a statement that said: "The results of the Oct. 3 election, with figures indicating percentages nearing 100 per cent, revealed a brazen rigging beyond imagination."

Election officials said final official vote totals gave Thieu 94.3 per cent of the ballots cast, with 5.5 per cent against him. The remaining 2 per cent was unaccounted for.

On Monday, officials had listed 91.5 per cent for Thieu and 5.5 per cent against, with 3 per cent of the votes inexplicably missing.

In other developments, Ven-erable Huyen Quang, secretary-general of the An Quang Buddhist Church, said he would send a letter to U.S. ambassador Ellsworth Bunker denouncing alleged American intervention in the election "against the will of the South Vietnamese people."

tual money will be voted in a later appropriations bill, survived the Senate with all major weapons systems getting authorizations approved by the usually pro-Pentagon Armed Services Committee.

Two floor amendments, however, promise to cause major difficulties when the bill goes to conference with the House.

One is an amendment by Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield of Montana calling for total U.S. withdrawal from Indochina in six months, provided American prisoners are freed.

The second amendment headed for trouble is a proposal by Sen. Gordon Allott, R-Colo., to add $381 million in additional military pay increases for the lower enlisted grades to the $2.4 billion pay raise already enacted in the draft extension act.

Police Check Two Mishaps; No Injuries

State police of the Warren substation report no injuries resulted in two traffic accidents investigated Wednesday morning.

At 1 a.m. Wednesday, police said a car operated by Kristina Hanson, 500 Haines st., Kane, Pa., traveling on Route 6, approximately two miles east of Sheffield, failed to negotiate a curve, went out of control and skidded into a tree.

Damage was listed at $1,300.

The second mishap occurred at 7:30 a.m. at the intersection of Route 6 and Yankee Bush rd., when, according to police, a car operated by Charlene B. Nelson, RD 1, Pittsfield, traveling east, stopped for the traffic light. Police stated that a truck driven by John R. Little, also of RD 1, Pittsfield, was unable to stop on the wet highway and struck the Nelson auto in the rear.

Total damage was estimated at $150.

Man Charged With Disorderly Conduct

Edmond Carl Christenson, of 158 Follett Run rd. was charged with disorderly conduct Wednesday. The charge was filed by Borough Police Sgt. Richard L. White before Justice of the Peace Raymond Gilmore.

According to police, Christenson was performing in a loud and boisterous manner in the vicinity of a local Pennsylvania ave. east restaurant.

Ruth Hall of East Hickory may be unique among justices of the peace in Pennsylvania. Not many magistrates do more business with the Fish Commission than with the state police, but she does. During the year which ended last July 31, she collected and turned over to the Fish Commission $275 in fines for fish law violations. That's almost $100 more than she handled in vehicle code fines.

In the list of persons indicted by the October grand jury, which appeared Wednesday in the Warren Times-Mirror and Observer, it was incorrectly stated that Jesse Marino, charged with sales tax violation, resided at 9 N. Carver st. No correct address is currently available.

Columbus Township now has its first official fire police officers, with six men sworn in by Justice of the Peace Monday night. Thomas Messenger, township fire chief, said the six will have the same authority as policemen when handling traffic at fires or serving in any case of disaster. Previously, Messenger said, men served in this capacity but had no arrest powers. The men were sworn in at the direction of township supervisors. Now serving in the police capacity are Joseph Ficcardi, David Curtis, Gene Hasbrouck, Thomas Felton, Frank Savko and Floyd Utegg.

formation of the Marienville Area Civic Association, last year's winner.

Herbert Moritz, county commissioner, Forest County, and representing MACA, presented the large silver bowl to Mrs. Christy on which already have been inscribed the names of Don Neal, Robert Holmes and MACA the first three winners. Moritz also presented to Roy Marker, also of MACA, a pewter miniature of the bowl which MACA will keep permanently.

Secretary Arader said in greeting his audience that he was honored to join the list of four secretaries of commerce who have in as many years been the guest speakers at KDVB annual dinners.

He jested that the tourist promotion agency representing Warren and Forest counties would next year be successful in maintaining that accomplishment.

In introducing the secretary, LeRoy Schneck, KDVB president, said that he has already shown to Warren County businessmen that he considers being of service to business being the most important part of his job. Secretary Arader, Schneck said, "went out on a limb" for one of the county's major industries when the New Process Company was faced with an almost insurmountable increase in operating costs arising out of legislation.

Secretary Arader gave Kinzua Country tourist businessmen some good and some bad news. He said that his department had been successful in increasing the tourist promotion budget from $500,000 to $1 million even in a year when the word austerity is on every legislator's lips.

The bad news was that Governor Shapp had taken from that fund $150,000 to create a fund for the flood ravaged areas on the east.

More good news to Warren County specifically was that there would be no reduction in the amount the state would contribute to Warren and Forest counties in matching funds, which is the minimum contribution of $5,000 each. He said, however, that there would be a reduction for counties where contributions have been considerably larger.

The secretary said in explaining the success of the Pennsylvania Industrial Development Assn. in helping business, and in the process making a profit by loaning money at the low rate of two per cent, that PIDA would be happy to assist recreational industry in the same way if the legislators would provide the funds.

In responding to a question from the floor, Secretary Arader raised the hackles on the neck of at least one politician when he commented on the unemployment compensation law recently passed.

The secretary said that legislators responded to the "clout" of unions in passing the bill which included welfare provisions. He said that neither his department nor businessmen would object to unemployment compensation as long as it remained an insurance benefit; however, both object to using it as relief or welfare. He said that although the fund is healthy now, he questioned that it could maintain that position in the event of a serious nationwide economic decline.

In responding to the secretary's comments, Senator Richard Frame acknowledged Arader's businesslike approach in handling the affairs of the department but said that the compensation bill could have been worse had the legislators not to some degree responded to the "clout" of the unions.

The senator commented that there was an impossible political climate now for any legislator to vote for any business tax relief in the next two years. He said that politics in Pennsylvania in the future would not be of any one party, calling for a cessation of hard party positions.

tion "it is also essential that there be government sanctions to back it up, and there will be."

Leonard Woodcock, president of the United Auto Workers, told the House Banking Committee Wednesday that a non-government wage-price review board should be set up to prevent what he called excessive price increases.

Woodcock said such a board, composed of industry, labor and the public, will be organized labor's price for cooperation with Phase 2.

On the labor front Nixon ordered the Justice Department to apply for a Taft-Hartley injunction against the Pacific Coast dockworkers strike. The court order would direct the workers to return to their jobs while contract negotiations continue during an 80-day cooling off period. Included in the President's order was a labor dispute at the port of Chicago.

Similar strikes along the South Atlantic and Gulf coasts appeared to be waning slightly in the face of expected Taft-Hartley action.

However, Nixon ordered federal officials to go to New York City to try to seek a settlement of the East and Gulf coast disputes without resort to Taft-Hartley injunctions.

Shipping sources reported that longshoremen were flocking back to work and full dock operations were under way in Port Arthur, Brownsville, Corpus Christi and Orange, Tex., as well as in Lake Charles, La. Longshoremen in Houston and Galveston, Tex., had ignored the strike order from the start.

Shippers in New York said longshoremen also were working in Miami and Port Everglades, Fla., and were permitting consignees to pick up shipments on piers in Mobile, Ala., and Tampa, Fla.

There still appeared no signs of a break in the soft-coal strike which has idled 80,000 miners in 20 states.

WE'RE THE WATER COMPANY PEOPLE

To keep good water flowing to all our customers - every hour of the day and night, including week ends and holidays - requires team effort. As a water distribution system employee, I'm part of that team. With others, I'm involved in installing new water mains, repairing existing mains, making service connections, flushing fire hydrants, and carrying out the many other duties necessary to provide the best possible water service to you.

Action Plan

to "reflect the emerging competition from regional-type shopping centers as it affects the entire business community of Warren Borough."

This report would anticipate the impact of the Route 6 bypass and the proposed market st. bridge and business conditions in Warren and the CBD. It would analyze the primary and secondary market areas for the borough, the buying power available there, the disposable income, retail sales and comparisons of sales for specific types of retail goods.

2. "A definitive shoppers survey" would be conducted to determine the things area residents feel is lacking in the downtown. This may include asking random shoppers such questions as: What is your frequency of shopping trips to the borough and your mode of travel? What do you buy here? How much do you spend outside of the CBD as compared to what you spend while here? What do you think of the merchandise selection here, the prices, the store hours, the level of service, the comfort and convenience of the CBD and the traffic and parking situations?"

The results of this survey would serve as a valuable input when considering the CBD situation. According to Planning Assistant Tom Hessley, the people on the inside of the borough's hierarchy can't possibly see every problem. By getting the whole community involved the hidden difficulties will come to the surface.

3. The main cog in the CBD, the merchants, will also be surveyed to "develop an understanding of current and anticipated merchandising problems."

Some of the questions they might be asked include: What is your approximate floor space requirement? How much do you pay in rental costs? Do you have remodeling plans? How many employees do you have and where do they park? What are your opinions about parking, support facilities, appearances in the CBD and what are your suggestions to improve the situation?

4. A method of measuring the municipal cost tax benefit ratio must be established which will include assessed values and wage taxes derived in relation to the municipal services rendered. This will provide a basis for suggesting the types of uses which tend to strengthen the CBD and those uses that are marginal in nature. Based on this land productivity information it will be possible to determine the growth potential of the CBD.

5. An evaluation of the future economic life of the principal buildings in the CBD should be made to determine what sections of the downtown should be retained, rehabilitated or removed.

Comprehensive maps indicating the existing upper and lower floor uses should be drawn up indicating such things as the use of the floor space, the condition of the building, the height of the building, the lot coverage and available parking, the usable vacant floor space and the use of street frontage.

6. Currently the CBD, as defined by Tom Hessley, runs from Hazel st. on the west to Prospect st. on the east. On the western side of the Conewango Creek its north-south boundaries are Fifth ave. and the Allegheny River. On the east side of the Conewango the CBD is bordered by Madison ave. on the north and Lexington ave. on the south.

All the analyses and studies we mentioned above would be used to draw up a "Development Plan" for the CBD area. This development plan would include recommendations as to how the land should be used, where the public facilities are most needed and how the traffic should be routed to make movement, parking and loading more efficient, convenient and safe for the vehicles and pedestrians in the downtown.

IMPLEMENTATION

From this point recommendations will be made, specifying how the development plan should be implemented.

We've now come full cycle to the point we were talking about yesterday. Implementation means identifying vital CBD projects and including them in the Capital Improvements Program which—to refresh memories—is a system for assigning priorities to projects.

Implementation also means reviewing zoning controls so that they reflect the policies of the CBD and identifying the most vital needs and inserting them in a six-year action program so that they can be budgeted for construction.

In addition, the planning consultants have promised to recommend the type of action needed in the other parts of the borough—such as suggesting locations and programs for new housing (taking into consideration the 160 units now proposed by the Warren County Housing Authority); identifying specific neighborhood improvements required to sustain the character of the borough; pointing out where federal funding may come from; and assisting in the preparation of the recertification application for the Workable Program with HUD.

An optional clause in the action plan is to hire the consultant's urban design staff to prepare street level sketches for principal CBD block faces showing both the existing and proposed conditions.

This option, which will cost $3,000 if elected, may be trimmed from the final package. There has been some talk, however, that an independent group such as the Chamber of Commerce may finance that area of the planning endeavor.

Without the optional clause the whole action plan portion will cost $13,200. Some of this money might be provided by a State Planning Assistant Grant (SPAG).

Local Masons Celebrate Anniversary

Robert M. Evans, the most excellent grand high priest of the Grand Holy Arch Chapter of Pennsylvania Masons, will be among the featured guests on Saturday, Oct. 16, when the Occidental Royal Arch Chapter No. 235 of Warren commemorates its one-hundredth anniversary at the Masonic Temple on Liberty st.

Evans and other members of the grand chapter will be honored at the temple at 5 p.m. during a special meeting of the chapter. Dinner will follow at 6:30 p.m. with the Rev. Cuthbert E. Haine, grand chaplain, as the feature speaker.

The Warren chapter was chartered by the Grand Holy Royal Arch Chapter of Pennsylvania on August 17, 1871.

Paul O. Walker, most excellent high priest of the Warren chapter, has announced that dinner ticket reservations will be accepted through Monday, October 11.

Tickets can be purchased from Paul F. Mathis, P.H.P., at the Masonic Temple or any chapter officer. Price of the ticket is $3.75 per person.

Two Killed In Grinding Crash

BEDFORD, Pa. (AP) — Two Ohio men were killed and two others were hurt today in a grinding crash along the Pennsylvania Turnpike about seven miles east of here, state police said.

The dead were identified as Willie Charles Mills, 18, of Sandusky, and James Stern, 22, of University Heights, both passengers in a van-type truck driven by Dennis Knicely, 19, of Norwich, Ohio.

Knicely and Miles Lester Davis, 24, of Brooklyn, N.Y., another passenger, were admitted to the Bedford County Memorial Hospital in satisfactory condition.

Troopers said the van slammed into a concrete bridge abutment.

Hammer Killer Is Charged With Double Murder

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — A 20-year-old East Side man was charged with first-degree murder Wednesday in the hammer slayings of two sisters.

Police charged Bobby Davis with two counts of murder a few hours after the second sister, Irene Fleming, 56, died in Forest City Hospital.

Mrs. Fleming was found beaten Monday and her sister, Ruth Hall, 48, was found dead in a Lakeview Road apartment.

Police said both women had been beaten around the head with a claw hammer, and parts of their bodies had been painted white.

Davis was picked up Monday near Akron University by university security guards, who said he was acting in a suspicious manner. Akron police turned him over to Cleveland homicide detectives after it was found that Davis was driving a car registered to Mrs. Hall.

Administration Upgrades School Lunch Plan--For Poorest Of Poor

WASHINGTON (AP) — Under congressional pressure, the Nixon administration upgraded Wednesday its school lunch plan for needy children but insisted the aid go only to the poorest of the poor.

The Agriculture Department announced federal reimbursement to the states for serving meals to needy school children this year will be an average minimum of 45 cents a serving, a 10-cent boost from a 35-cent plan announced in August.

Officials said the liberalized plan will add $135 million to the school lunch program, raising 1971-72 expenditures to $750 million. Last year the total cost was $536 million.

The Senate voted last week to seek a 46-cent minimum package, with the extra penny going toward all school lunches. The 10-cent increase by the Agriculture Department all goes to the needy-child program, the same as sought by the Senate.

But Asst. Secretary of Agriculture Richard Lyng told a news conference the aid this year will go only toward helping children from families having incomes at or below federal poverty guideline—an annual income of $3,940 for a family of four.

Previously, the department has allowed school lunch money for needy children as long as they were from families certified as eligible from state and local authorities.

Lyng, under questioning, had no estimate on how much the new rule might save the government. He said, however,

Farm Index Drops

HARRISBURG (AP) — The Pennsylvania farm price index dropped three points in September from the previous month and nine points lower than a year ago, the state crop reporting service said Wednesday.

It said lower prices for poultry, corn, wheat, hogs, steers and heifers more than offset higher prices for milk and eggs in September.

about 8 percent of the 7.3 million needy children served last school year were from families with incomes higher than federal cutoffs.

Lyng said the liberalized program is expected to reach a peak of 8 million needy children this school year.

Lyng said there is nothing in the new rule to prevent communities from paying themselves for meals to help children from higher-income families.

Sen. Herman E. Talmadge, D-Ga., who was instrumental in getting a Senate resolution calling for increased aid, told a reporter he is gratified by the administration's action and pointed out the 45-cent level is 3 cents more than the average minimum allowed states last year.

Unique Inquiry

Not all Americans are apathetic. Some even have a desire to learn what they can about the use and application of their tax dollars which they so dutifully pay the government, and which are later divided up among a host of governmental agencies to conduct the "people's business."

Such a person is Benjamin H. Oehlert Jr., former ambassador to Pakistan. However, it was the ex-ambassador's curiosity about the dollars he had paid in to unemployment insurance for a number of years that led him to park his Rolls in a convenient space and walk into the West Palm Beach unemployment office to file for benefits.

He was certain, upon learning the facts of his case, the entrenched bureaucrats of the office would toss him out on his ear. He had resigned his last two jobs voluntarily and had no intention of taking another. While the uniqueness of the situation did to a certain extent unnerv the clerk filling out Oehlert's application blank, he said he would check with state headquarters and that the applicant should return the next day.

On returning the second day, the ex-ambassador was faced with another batch of forms and a different counselor. He was told to return to the office each Monday at 9 a. m. When he mentioned that this hour was inconvenient as that was the time his secretary came to work, and asked for an alternate time, he claims that "the mailed fist of bureaucracy fell, and it wasn't encased in a velvet glove." He was told he had jolly well be at the office every Monday at 9 a. m. without fail.

Stringing along with the game he was playing, Oehlert continued his weekly visits for a full two months. During this time he was instructed to attend a group meeting to view a film on unemployment insurance, in the course of which it was specifically stated that anyone who had voluntarily left his or her last job was ineligible. When he pointed it out that this applied to his case, he was told the film didn't really mean what it said.

After standing in line for two months every Monday morning, Oehlert was told he had been ruled eligible and soon afterward received a check for $240. He endorsed it back to the state, learned that the state controller was grateful for his action, and immediately withdrew his application.

He had learned what he wanted to learn.

First, that applicants for unemployment compensation are treated with short shrift and very little grace or courtesy in spite of the fact they are not beggars nor charity cases.

Second, that unemployment insurance has become a way of life for many people. That many people make it a practice to work for a minimum period then collect, and yet they could afford such things as new cars, colored television, new furniture and wall-to-wall carpeting while working on a part time basis.

And finally, that while unemployment officials were inconsiderate of the applicants, they were even more inconsiderate of the taxpayers. They made no real effort to either find employment for the applicants, or insist that the applicants make reasonable efforts to find work for themselves.

During the two month Oehlert visited the unemployment office, his wife was in constant contact with the same office trying to hire a cook and a maid without ever a response. Yet Oehlert stood in line with experienced and professional cooks and maids to know that they should have been available.

With West Palm Beach being a long way from Warren, conditions there may be entirely different from those one would find in our local office. Nor should Oehlert's experience condemn the entire unemployment compensation system. But if we had more citizens who would dedicate themselves to learning how the various bureaucratic agencies function, how well they are fulfilling their purpose of serving the public, and how prudent they are about handing out public funds, there's little question we'd be getting a lot more for our tax dollars.

Goodby, Washington Senators

By Art Buchwald

WASHINGTON -- The Washington Senators baseball team, after playing in the Capital for 71 years, has left for Texas. The elation in Dallas and Fort Worth over this turn of events can only be ascribed to the fact that no one in that part of the country has ever seen the Senators play.

The reason for the exodus was poor attendance, which Mr. Robert Short, the owner of the team, said was costing him a fortune. What worries people here is that the Senators may be the first of many institutions that might decide to pull out.

Perhaps in the next few years we will be reading the following press releases:

WASHINGTON, D. C. -- House Speaker Carl Albert announced today that he was moving Congress to Fort Wayne, Ind., at the end of the season. "The Washington fans just don't seem to want to support Congress," Albert said at a press conference. "At our last night session we had only five people in the gallery and our cafeteria has been running a deficit for two years. Fort Wayne is very excited about having a major branch of the U.S. government in its town, and we're looking forward to playing there for many years to come."

WASHINGTON, D. C. -- The British Embassy has just made it official. It is moving from Washington, D.C., to Palm Beach, Fla. A spokesman for the embassy said the decision was made reluctantly by the ambassador but the turnout at the Queen's birthday party reception had been so poor that he had no choice. "It's obvious to us that Washington doesn't want a British Embassy, despite all the talk," the spokesman said. "We've had offers from all over the country to move our team and we've decided on Palm Beach because they've guaranteed a full turnout for every one of our receptions."

LAS VEGAS, Nev. -- Mayor Byron Lovemaster has just confirmed that Las Vegas has finalized a deal to bring the U.S. Supreme Court to Las Vegas. The mayor told Hank Greenspan of the Las Vegas Sun that he considers the Supreme Court one of the best tourist attractions in the country, as it will bring in lawyers and defendants from all over the land.

"We sent a delegation to Washington, and we think we made the best presentation. Miami and San Juan, P.R., both made bids for the court, but we won out when we promised to build an all-weather Supreme Court building with Astroturf in each of the justices' chambers. We can get 50,000 people in the new court building at one time."

(Chief Justice Burger confirmed Mayor Lovemaster's announcement. "We're going to miss Washington," he said on the Today Show. "But while most people here said they were behind the Supreme Court, they wouldn't come out for our decision. Las Vegas sounds like a great Supreme Court town.")

WASHINGTON, D.C. -- A blue-ribbon delegation consisting of lawyer Edward Bennett Williams, Mayor Walter Washington and City Council Chairman Gilbert Hahn paid a visit to President Nixon this morning in a last-minute effort to persuade him not to move the White House to Lincoln, Neb. Mr. Nixon said he had no choice. The people in Washington did not appreciate a President in their town, and he blamed criticism by the news media for the lack of support for the present Administration. Mr. Nixon said:

"It's always a tragedy when a city loses a White House, but there are other things that have to be taken into consideration. Nebraska has the No. 1 football team in the country, and I believe a President of the United States should always be in the town with the No. 1 team."

aides. Also the multiplication tables firmly cemented in the memory to be used as a foundation for higher mathematics.

I do not want the school to interfere with areas that should be the concern of only the parents. This must include personality development. For a school to attempt to recreate the personality of a child by making an extrovert out of an introvert or making a "leader" out of someone that prefers to be just one of the gang -- is not only an attack on parental prerogatives, but is an invasion of the most private life of the child.

The relationship between my child and his family and the private lives and personal opinions of such -- must not be intruded upon. To ask a child to write about or stand before a group and talk about private family matters, personal convictions of parents, social concerns and personal feelings, is a more blatant violation of the right of privacy than wire tapping.

For a school to teach a child about sex, social responsibilities, religion (in the form of evolution -- which is atheism), or abstract political philosophies -- is a violation of the trust placed in the schools by the parents.

True History is a necessity. But it must be taught as a history free from editorializing. The history of our country must be taught with the opinions of our founding fathers being paramount -- so that the reasons for having the form of government we have, instead of some other form, is clearly understood. If this is done properly, it will quite naturally instill in a child a sense of pride in his country and the heritage bestowed upon him.

Parents have a God-given responsibility for a child. A part of the responsibility is delegated to the schools by the parents. This is a convenience to their parents, -- a supplement but not a substitute. The responsibility and authority delegated to the schools must not be abused by usurping more authority or by weakening family cohesiveness or authority in any way.

Sincerely,

THE PENNSYLVANIA STORY

2563 Bills Introduced

By Mason Denison

HARRISBURG -- When Pennsylvania's lawmakers returned to Capitol Hill this week to open their "fall season" on the legislative front (following their end-of-summer month's recess), they did so with a tally of two gubernatorial vetoes tucked under their belts and 201 pieces of legislation signed into law by His Excellency.

After being in existence for nine months, this certainly is no great shakes from a numerical accomplishment standpoint but it is somewhat notable perhaps from the "quality" or major legislation enactment standpoint -- if for no other reason than the fact that within the space of that nine months Pennsylvania taxpayers found themselves blessed with legislation providing a state income tax for the first time!

Elsewhere on the legislative front during the nine-month span, in addition to granting themselves a comfortable expense increase (currently held in abeyance by presidential wage-price controls) Pennsylvania's lawmakers managed to introduce a total of 2563 bills for their august consideration.

Of this total, 1498 were dumped into the hopper of the House of Representatives and 1065 in the Senate.

Whatever happened to this mass of bills?

Well, of the 1498 introduced in the House of Representatives, 287 were given final approval by the House and sent to the Senate for consideration -- of which number 128 were indeed passed by the Senate.

Of the 1065 bills introduced in the Senate, 208 managed to emerge from Senate committee to receive ultimate Senate approval and be sent to the House of Representatives for consideration -- of which 93 had gained House clearance by the time lawmakers returned this week.

Interestingly perhaps, on two different legislative days during the past nine-month span, the number of bills introduced in any one day exceeded the 100-mark -- those two days being February 8 when 116 legislative gems were dumped into the House legislative hopper, and June 2 when 103 new bills made their appearance.

The smaller Senate (50 members versus 203 in the House) never quite managed to meet the frenzied peak achieved by the House in introducing more than 100 bills in any one day -- as the best the Senate could muster was 96 new bills in a single day, that notable event having occurred back on January 25.

After that spurt, the best the Senators could muster was 66 bills the following week on February 1.

Of the 276 calendar days of the year up to the beginning of the resumed sessions this week, the House of Representatives was in session a total of 79 legislative days, the Senate 86 legislative days.

For the record, the current week marks the Legislature's 30th "legislative week."

Back to those 201 pieces of legislation signed into law by the Governor:

Of this 201, 107 were bills covering so-called "general" legislation -- that is, legislation not generally classified as having anything to do with fiscal affairs (although what legislation doesn't in one way or another today!).

The remaining 94 contributions signed into law by His Excellency were strictly fiscal bills -- so-called appropriation bills.

Where does the Legislature go from here? That's something lawmakers themselves wish they knew the answer to!

ON THE RIGHT ...

Richard Poff — Jesse Jackson

By William F. Buckley, Jr.

The decision of Congressman Richard Poff to withdraw his name from consideration for Supreme Court Justice is a triumph of what nowadays is called McCarthyism. The implications of his withdrawal are various, and they touch on several aspects of the ongoing struggle to achieve interracial harmony.

The day that Mr. Poff made his decision to withdraw, which issued from a reluctance to defend his voting record on civil rights legislation, it happened that I spent an hour or so with the Reverend Jesse Jackson, the black leader of Operation Breadbasket and by increasing agreement, successor to Martin Luther King as leader of the moderate-militant black community. Mr. Jackson, who is very young, very able, and extraordinarily intelligent, has contrived a superb blend of rhetorical intransigence and analytical sobriety. On the one hand he avoids anti-white racism and the invidious anti-American despair that made some of his brothers fleetingly popular during the turbulent sixties. On the other hand, his rhetorical belligerence and his irascible men the never smiles, avoiding affability with total success, suggest to his followers that there is nothing of the conciliator in his system, that as regards what he considers the rights of his constituency, he is as adamant as Gromyko. It will be a long time before a Negro insurrectionary movement will make way with the charge that Jackson is playing the honkey's game.

Jesse Jackson deals heavily in symbols. And it is of course symbols that beat Richard Poff, who wanted to be a Justice of the Supreme Court, and who was considered highly qualified to serve on the Supreme Court even by Emmanuel Celler, the principal figure in the House Judiciary Committee, whose credentials as a liberal are unchallenged.

I doubt that anybody sincerely believes that Richard Poff would have undermined the civil rights legislation of the sixties, notwithstanding that he voted against it. But it was necessary to fight against him, because many liberals believe that it is necessary to cause to suffer those who, in the fifties and sixties, interpreted the Constitution of the United States in such a way as is now considered historically atrocious.

One thinks, by contrast, of the debate

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

Jack Anderson

WASHINGTON -- In his memoirs, Lyndon Johnson describes in harrowing detail how he maneuvered the Sixth Fleet in response to a hot-line threat of Soviet military action against Israel in 1967 and how he faced down Premier Aleksei Kosygin over the Middle East during their subsequent meeting at Glassboro, N. J.

Here are the highlights from our bootleg copy of the Johnson memoirs:

At the height of the Arab-Israeli Six Day War, the President received a grim, hot-line message from Kosygin threatening "necessary actions, including military" unless Israel halted its operations unconditionally within a few hours.

There was other provocative language in the message. Declares Johnson: "In an exchange between heads of government, these were serious words: 'very crucial moment,' 'catastrophe,' 'independent decisions,' 'military actions.'"

"The room was deathly still as we carefully studied this grave communication. I turned to (Defense Secretary) McNamara. 'Where is the Sixth Fleet now?' I asked him."

The fleet had orders to stay at least 100 miles from the Syrian coast. The President told McNamara "to issue orders at once to change the course and cut the restriction to 50 miles."

"The Secretary of Defense gave the orders over the phone. No one else said a word. Some of the men in the Situation Room later recorded their memories of that morning. (Ambassador to Russia) Llewellyn Thompson recalled it as a 'time of great concern and utmost gravity.' (CIA Director) Richard Helms remembers that 'the atmosphere was tense' and that conversation was conducted 'in the lowest voices I had ever heard in a meeting of that kind.'"

KREMLIN GETS MESSAGE

"We all knew the Russians would get the message as soon as their monitors observed the change in the fleet's pattern. That message, which no translator would need to interpret to the Kremlin leadership, was that the United States was prepared to resist Soviet intrusion in the Middle East."

The crisis faded and, not long afterward, Johnson and Kosygin held a friendly, face-to-face meeting in Glassboro, N. J.

"At only one point in our first session did Kosygin seem close to becoming really heated," recalls LBJ. "He said we had talked about territorial integrity before the Middle East war, but we had ended by protecting aggression. He insisted that Israeli troops go back to the original armistice lines."

"At that point, he came close to issuing a threat. Unless we agreed to his formula, he declared, there would be a war -- 'a very great war.' He said the Arabs would fight with arms if they had them and, if not, with bare hands."

"If they fight with weapons, I replied, we would know where they got them. Then I leaned forward and said slowly and quietly: 'Let us understand one another. I hope there will be no war. If there is a war, I hope it will not be a big war. If they fight, I hope they fight with fists and not with guns.'"

"I told him that I hoped both our countries could keep out of any Middle East explosion because 'if we do get into it, it will be a most serious matter.'"

"Kosygin noted that we now had the 'hot line' and could use that whenever necessary as we had to good effect during the recent Six Day War. Kosygin apologized for having awakened me so early in the morning through the 'hot line.' But, he added, together we had 'accomplished more on that one day than others could accomplish in three years.'"

DECISION TO BOMB

Kosygin was also involved, indirectly, in an earlier crisis. He was in Hanoi on Feb. 6, 1965, when communist guerrillas struck a U.S. barracks at Pleiku. This led to President Johnson's decision to bomb North Vietnam. He recalls:

"As we talked, there was an electric tension in the air. Everyone in the room was deadly serious as he considered the possible consequences of this decision. Each man around that table knew how crucial such action could be. How would Hanoi react? Would the Chinese Communists use it as a pretext for involving themselves? What about Kosygin and the Russians in Hanoi?"

"Someone suggested that Ho Chi Minh had mousetrapped the Soviet leader by attacking us during his visit. If we failed to respond, we were 'paper tigers.' If we hit back, Soviet prestige might be further involved."

The President went ahead with the first bombing attack while Kosygin was still in Hanoi. LBJ explained at a secret briefing for congressional leaders: "We have kept our gun over the mantel and our shells in the cupboard for a long time now. And what was the result? They are killing our men while they sleep in the night. I can't ask our American soldiers out there to continue to fight with one hand tied behind their backs."

More than three years later, Johnson ordered the futile bombing stopped. His recollection of the moment:

"I looked, one by one, at the men assembled around the long cabinet table and asked their judgments on my decision. The reactions were quick and unanimous. 'Absolutely,' said one. 'The thing to do,' said another. 'I had the feeling that I was perhaps the most doubtful man in the room.'"

Footnote: During the deep crises of his presidency, Johnson often sought refuge at St. Dominic's cathedral. "This was one of my favorite churches," he writes, "a somber, gray Victorian-Gothic structure, with twin spires rising above the modern construction that was going up around it, in a poor section of southwest Washington. Inside, St. Dominic's was simple and restful. I had gone there on many Sunday mornings, and on numerous unreported occasions I had dropped in for a few minutes of prayer late at night."

The Readers Speak

Dear Editor:

This letter concerns a little girl, the youngest of fourteen children. Her Mother has been a widow seven years. The little girl received a silver beige poodle puppy, a very rare dog as a gift. The little girl aged 10 and the puppy were in the yard of their home. The puppy went to the edge of the road, a car came up the road and hit the puppy. The driver slowed down after he hit the pup and then drove on. He was later contacted by a person outside of the family and came back a day or two later. This of course did not help the little girl or bring the dead puppy back. The gentleman (?) was connected with the game protection commission. It is my opinion that had the little girl been standing there with a gun or an undersized fish in her hands he would have stopped immediately.

The little girl was so heart broken that she couldn't go to school for two days and naturally she still cries for her puppy. I know how much the puppy was loved because the little girl is my baby sister and I gave her the puppy.

This just shows how heartless and unconcerned some upstanding, responsible citizens can be.

Sincerely,
A concerned person

Dear Sir:

I'm writing to commend the eight (8) intelligent councilmen who took the courage to stand up and be counted, instead of rubber stamping certain groups recommendations in regard to the recent "Action Plan" for Warren Boro. Those eight men receive no compensation for their devoted hours spent towards the proper development of Warren. The complete opposite was indicated in the editorial of the paper on September 28, 1971, which stated these men were after votes. What would any individual want the position for, other than personal satisfaction in having a hand in the guidance of his community by serving the citizens who elected him?

Warren surely needs a plan to guide its future development. I'm sure everyone agrees with that. What should this cost? Nearly every time council makes a decision on a purchase ($1,000 or $50,000) they receive bids of some nature. Why wasn't this done on the "Action Plan"? The citizens of Warren Boro are presently faced with a heavy Tax burden. Spending $40,000 would surely augment the existing burden. Boro officials presently see a tax increase for the year 1972. What happened to the savings on combining Boro work forces? At present it's been stated that Warren Boro has a budget of $30,000, per year for planning services. If this $40,000 extra is spent that makes $70,000. Now if it takes two (2) years to complete this plan, that makes another $60,000 invested in services by the Boro. Grand total of $130,000 for the Action Plan. There are possible grants available to help finance this but nobody is sure if they are forthcoming, or when. If they aren't available the door is still open for the spending of the $130,000. If we spend this kind of money just for the plan, where do we get the money for the "Action".

Several groups, League of Women Voters, Chamber of Commerce (comprised of business men who will benefit the most from this plan), Boro Planning, Citizens Advisory Committees, along with Warren Times-Mirror, and the council members who voted Yes, seem to have so much faith in this Bargain why don't they finance the project themselves instead of hastily recommending to spend a part of everybody elses finances.

I sincerely hope the eight councilmen, who have done what they feel is right, have the courage to stand up to the pressure groups within the area and base their decisions on good common sense instead of Foolish Cents or should I say dollars.

Congratulations for a job well done by some real sincere elected officials.

Dear Teacher:

What do I want my child taught in school? Just those things that, as parents, we are unable to teach, or that we agree that the schools are better equipped to teach, so long as it does not conflict with principles or standards taught at home.

I find it very important that my child be taught how to read. Not just a surface knowledge, a look-see picture image of a word, but an actual understanding of how, through syllables, words are formed to express a meaning.

This must include a knowledge of the alphabet, the building block of our language, so that he will not be at a loss later, in confronting new words.

I want him to be able to write, clearly and legibly, using good sentence structure and correct punctuation. This must include a complete familiarity with spelling.

Basic arithmetic is another subject that my child should understand. How to count,

Stackpole Carbon Co. President Named To Airport Authority

Harrison Stackpole of Stackpole Carbon Co., St. Marys, was welcomed as the new member from Elk County at the monthly meeting of the Bradford Regional Airport Authority Wednesday at the airport. With William Cramer, Stackpole will constitute Elk County's representation on the Authority.

In the general business meeting it was brought out by F. Wayne Fesenmyer, chairman, that Yost Associates of DuBois, consulting engineers, had submitted a general contract covering all prospective jobs at the airport instead of a contract on the single job of resurfacing the secondary runway. The general contract will be returned and a single contract will be written by Yost for the job that will cost an estimated $350,000. Of this amount, the state will finance one-half and the Authority will be responsible for the remaining sum. However, it is possible to apply for Appalachia funds for one-half of the Authority's cost and it is also possible to receive credit for the blacktopping already done at the main hangar; credit to be applied against the remaining cost to the Authority.

Seven bids were received for the demolition of buildings on land acquired by the Authority for the Approach Landing System and the Instrument Landing Systems. Low bid was from D.E. Walters of Bradford at $2,148.27. Complete removal of the buildings and clean-up of the area must be done by Nov. 1.

STACKPOLE

The state aviation commission has agreed to pay half the cost of the new hangar doors in the amount of $3,250. This money is to come from the liquid fuels tax funds.

Ray Johnson, airport administrator, said the Authority is now realizing an additional $185 a month from hangar rental, or $2,100 a year.

Victor H. Samuelson, real estate broker from Bradford, presented a bill for $1,000 for additional services he says he performed in the matter of the church removal at Mt. Alton. He has been paid, to date, for his services, $4,275, but claims the work on the church removal was extra and above his normal expectations. Fesenmyer will negotiate terms with him.

The McKean County highway department has notified the Authority that it will install additional road signs for the airport including two signs in Smethport and one in Bradford. They will also install signs at the airport entrance giving directions to the major towns of the area.

Johnson announced the painting of the interior of the terminal building had been completed, with the exception of two small offices, for the contract price of $1,000.

Russell Weston, McKean County member, suggested the Authority investigate the possibility of hiring Green Thumb persons to do odd jobs around the airport. He said Green Thumb persons were retired tradesmen and craftsmen who could work up to three days a week and their wages would be paid by the Office of Economic Opportunity.

Johnson presented the bill for the new engine in the snow blower. It was some $800 above the original estimate of $1,000, but had originally been set at $2,053.43. Johnson, however, secured reductions in both labor and material costs and gave the final bill at $1,812.50. The Authority voted to pay the bill.

County commissioners said they would like to have the Authority's 1972 budget by the November meeting which is scheduled for Wednesday, Nov. 10 in Ridgway.

A maintenance bill for the small snow plow at $833 was paid.

Johnson said arrangements had been made to have a fly over by Air National Guard F-102 fighter planes sometime during the Aviation Day this Sunday at the airport. The Allegheny Airline sight-seeing flights will run from 10 a.m. to about 6:30 p.m., Johnson said with prices set at $5 for adults and $3 for youths up to and including 16 years. He said two state police and five city police would be on hand for traffic control and that members of the McKean Aviation Association would handle crowd control, ticket sales for the flights and car parking. Refreshments will be available at the administration building and a public address system will be in use. All funds realized from the airplane rides will be turned over to the Authority for airport promotional purposes.

Johnson was given authority to attend a three-day meeting of the Northeast Chapter of Airport Executives at the Pocono Manor and $150 was voted to cover registration and room and meals. Johnson said he would provide his own transportation.

Richard Broxton, member from Warren, was unanimously elected as treasurer to the Authority.

Long range discussions were held on the establishment of a restaurant and cocktail lounge at the airport.

Warren County Work Force Drops

Times-Mirror & Observer
Harrisburg Bureau
HARRISBURG — The number of workers employed in Warren County manufacturing industries dropped 233 during the past year to a total average work force of 5,993, a State Department of Commerce industrial survey of the county shows.

The number of manufacturing plants in the county also showed a decline—dropping seven from 91 in 1969 to 84 last year.

The employment dip (down 3.75 per cent) combines the loss of several plants and a decline of business activities in the electrical machinery, equipment and supplies group, according to the department.

Of the county's 5,993 employees, 4,581 were classified as production and related workers as compared with 4,740 such workers a year earlier. (Production workers include workers and foremen whose work is associated with the manufacturing operations of the establishment.)

Other employees (supervisory employees above the working foremen level, sales employees, clerical and other office employees and corporation officials) accounted for the remaining 1,412 employees.

Warren County's industrial employees received wages and salaries rounding out to $48,249,000. In 1969 wages and salaries amounted to $48,085,000.

Value of production stood at $162,993,000 during 1970 or an increase of $5,463,000 over the 1969 figure of $157,530,000.

The borough of Warren last year had 34 establishments providing work for 4,088 persons with wages and salaries of $32,666,000 and $122,622,000 in value of production. During the previous year 37 firms employed 4,220 persons earning $31,348,000 in wages and salaries and producing goods valued at $120,322,000.

The borough is the industrial hub of the county with the 34 firms employing 68.22 per cent of the county workers (67.8 per cent in 1969), paying 67.78 per cent of the wages and salaries (65.19 per cent a year earlier) and producing 75.22 per cent of the value of production (76.38 per cent in 1969).

Major industry in the borough, employmentwise, were two miscellaneous plastics products factories providing employment for 1,657 persons. According to the department, for reasons of confidentiality no financial figures are given for individual establishments or any category with less than three plants.

Other municipalities employing 50 or more included in the department's report are as follows:

Clarendon—three plants; 63 employees; $327,000 in wages and salaries; major industry, employmentwise, a factory making vitreous china table and kitchen articles with 31 employees.

Youngsville—two plants; 79 employees; financial data withheld; major industry, a wood household furniture plant with 73 employees.

Brokenstraw Township—three plants; 1,210 employees; $11,788,000 in wages and salaries; major industry, an iron and steel forgings plant with 1,196 employees.

Conewango Township—10 plants; 123 employees; $759,000 in wages and salaries; major industry, a lubricating oils and greases plant with 35 employees.

Pittsfield Township—five plants; 85 employees; $554,000 in wages and salaries; major industry, a plant making miscellaneous fabricated wire products with 42 employees.

Sheffield Township—seven plants; 159 employees; $915,000 in wages and salaries; major industry, a plant making wirebound boxes and crates with 60 employees.

During the past ten years, using 1960 as a base, wages and salaries, after 1962, have shown an uninterrupted upward swing. From the base year, this increase was 68.5 per cent, or $19.6 million added to the county's industrial payroll.

Value of production increased at a larger percentage (81.9 per cent) than wages and salaries; and its increase over the base year amounted to $73.4 million.

By 1970, employment showed a net gain of 5.2 per cent or 299 jobs. Translating these figures to earnings, an average employee received $5,028 in 1960; by 1970, this total has climbed to $8,051 a year.

R. K. CULP
Culp Named Bank Manager

Ralph K. Culp has been appointed manager of the Tidioute office of the Warren National Bank, according to president James C. Torrance.

He succeeds R. Krug Cyphert, who retired October 1 after twenty-nine years of service with the bank.

Culp was born in Avonmore, Pa. and graduated from Bell-Avon High School, Salina, Pa. He attended Prince Georges Community College and the University of Maryland, and prior to moving to Warren County, was employed by the Library of Congress in Washington.

Culp joined the staff of the Warren National Bank two years ago and resides with his wife and son, Todd, at 286 Main st., Tidioute.

The new bank manager is serving as second vice president of the Tidioute Lions Club and is a member of the United Methodist Church.

Flurry Of Buying Sends Prices Higher

NEW YORK (AP) — A flurry of buying sent the stock market sharply higher in late trading Wednesday after the White House had set the time for President Nixon's address on Phase 2 of his economic program.

Stock market prices had drifted most of the session and analysts said investors were staying on the sidelines until the details of Phase 2 were made public.

But after the announcement that Nixon would make his economic speech Thursday night, traders returned to the market in large number.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks raced ahead in the final hour of trading to close up 9.41 points at 900.55.

Advances outnumbered declines 967 to 432 among the 1,700 Big Board issues traded, while gainers led losers 537 to 352 among 1,157 issues traded on the American Stock Exchange.

Big Board volume rose to 15.6 million shares from Tuesday's level of 12.37 million shares. On the Amex, 4.03 million shares changed hands, compared with 3.32 million shares Tuesday.

The New York Stock Exchange index of more than 1,300 common stocks climbed 41 to 55.15. The Amex price change index added .12 to 25.68.

The Associated Press 60-stock average rose 2.3 to 327.7 with industrials up 4.3, rails ahead 5 and utilities up 1.2.

Eckerd Corp. topped the Big Board active list, closing down 1% at 24% on 627,100 shares.

Career Counseling Gap

BY SYLVIA PORTER
A full 12 years ago the famed educator Dr. James B. Conant recommended in "The American High School Today" that our high schools have one vocational counselor for every 250 to 300 students.

Today the ratio is still only one for every 550. In many big city high schools, it's an appalling one counselor for every 1,000 students and the average amount of counseling is a near-universal 1 1/2 hours each year for each child.

A decade or so ago, John Gardner, the educator philosopher who heads "Common Cause," proposed that our schools offer continuing vocational guidance for ALL students until the age of 21, including career "checkups" during the early working years of youngsters who do not continue into college.

Today there are very few vocational counselors in either our two- or four-year colleges, professional, technical or graduate schools. Out of every four counselors there are in high schools and these concentrate most of their efforts on college-bound students.

Although the Federal government has poured tens of millions of dollars in recent years into the field of job counseling and training to make the best possible use of the nation's available skills, to reduce juvenile delinquency and to boost opportunities for the hard-to-employ, today's 70,000 vocational counselors fill only a small fraction of our real needs.

This is a dangerous gap, and it's made even more so by the current jamming of our technical and trade schools with kids who have decided to bypass a college education. As far as our nation's future well-being is concerned, just the worst of our youngsters may be choosing this route.

It's certainly a tragic gap to the millions of youngsters who are utterly ignorant of the full range of options and opportunities open to them in the labor market, to the millions of women and blacks still herded into low status, low-paying jobs.

The bulk of government career information, accuses Dr. Eli Ginzberg of Columbia University, is "irrelevant" to the actual needs of jobseekers in specific cities and specific occupational fields.

High school job counselors are bogged down in paper work—helping students choose courses, fill out application blanks, administering aptitude tests, etc.—when they should be helping the youngster to develop a long-range career strategy including post-high school education and the exploration of attractive occupational areas. "Kids catch on quickly that counselors just don't know very much," says Ginzberg, "and they quickly discount whatever the counselors say."

Even worse, declares Ginzberg, author of a hard-hitting new book, "Career Guidance" (McGraw-Hill, $7.95), "the girls, the blacks and the least economically advantaged students tend to get the worst job counseling. These are precisely the ones who need the best."

Of course, there has been some progress. The U.S. Labor Department and the Federal-State Employment Service are developing a wide range of new career guidance materials for disadvantaged workers. The Employment Service is stepping up its career-counseling capability for professionals as well as non-professionals. Dozens of Youth Opportunity Centers have been opened in recent years as an adjunct to the Employment Service to help dropouts and others. In some school systems, Brookline, Mass., and Seattle-dramatic experiments are being launched in career exploration.

But we urgently need in our high schools far more emphasis on group counseling to make the best possible use of the limited personnel, far more emphasis on counseling the non-college bound and on educating girls and minority members to the full range of opportunities ahead of them—if they have the right education-training.

We must bring counseling closer to the world of work, and certainly one worthwhile supplement would be businessmen recruited to tell high school students about their fields and requirements.

Certainly there is room for vast improvement in the counseling of women in their 30s who are returning to the labor force, and for all those approaching formal retirement. As Ginzberg points out, "The handling of retirement is in itself a kind of occupational choice" for many who go into a second career at that point.

And surely, we should discard the obsolete notion that a good guidance counselor must be a professional teacher.

'Woodsy Owl' Campaign Combats Pollution

"Give A Hoot! Don't Pollute!" Forest Supervisor Ralph H. Freeman enthusiastically announced the participation of Allegheny National Forest, (along with the other 153 National Forests in the U.S.), in the newly organized "Woodsy Owl" campaign, a battle against environmental pollution in all forms.

Woodsy Owl was pushed off his perch and into action at a press conference the morning of September 15 in Washington, when he was introduced by Secretary of Agriculture Clifford Hardin as an official U.S. Forest Service symbol. The Secretary explained that Woodsy will work as a constant reminder to children and adults of positive ways in which pollution can be fought. The symbol will focus attention in improvement of the outdoor environment. Protection of the soil, vegetation, air and water through wise and thoughtful use, elimination of unnecessary noise, and public appreciation and personal responsibility for the control of vandalism and destruction of our Nation's outdoors will be among the items emphasized.

Chief Edward P. Cliff of the Forest Service said Woodsy will be a compatible partner for Smokey Bear, who will continue as the symbol for forest fire prevention. Secretary Hardin added: "Like Smokey, the Woodsy Owl campaign will be a cooperative effort. Liaison with the communications industry and major financing will be supplied by the Public Service Council, headed by Russell Nagle. The Council is in the process of receiving voluntary contributions from many U.S. corporations and foundations."

Consideration will be given to requests for legitimate use of the symbol and slogan by private concerns, based on contribution to the public good and the values and goals of the campaign, and subject to Forest Service approval.

The Carson Roberts Agency of Los Angeles serves as a volunteer advertising agency to provide the creative talents and materials for all program items, such as public service ads, posters, and educational materials for school children. They will also provide continuing research of public acceptance of this program.

The owl was chosen as a symbol after a considerable study of several fantasy characters because of his universal appeal to all ages. He symbolizes wisdom; he is at home both in the forest and in the cities. A study, conducted by the Carson Roberts Agency, indicated overwhelming acceptance of the chubby little rascal in his pseudo Robin Hood outfit by children from kindergarten through college, who were contacted in schools, churches, summer camps, playgrounds and parks.

In making the announcement, Freeman urged the public to "get involved." "If the public will participate by supporting the program and following Woodsy's advice, both as individuals and groups," Freeman remarked, "we can expect to make great strides towards clean-up and protection of our environment."

JVCC Ladies Award Prizes

Jackson Valley Ladies Golf League held its fall banquet Sept. 30 at which time the 1972 slate of officers was elected, including Kathy Zoiko as president.

Filling the other posts are Helen Peterson, vice president; Jeanne Johnson, secretary; and Millie Snarburg, treasurer.

Top golfers were recognized and prizes awarded in first flight, low gross went to Nancy Hilliard, followed by Dee Cline and a two way tie for third between Rosann Paul and Kathy Zoiko. Wanda Arnold won low net over Mid Angove and Jeanne Johnson and Jane Jones, who finished in a deadlock for third.

Three golfers, Barb Swanson, Ruth Reynolds and Doris Scalise, tied for the low putts title, followed by a contingent of five who came in second—Bubbles Andersen, Ruby Henderson, Jeanette Rulander, Min Shanshala and Joan Swanson.

Marge Burton, Kay Johnson and Anna Spattfor captured the top three spots for low gross in second flight. Low net title went to Dot Vetera with Ellie Shanshala in second and Elvia Hendrickson, Gert Harris, Rose Driscoll and Donna Cramer all in for third. Joyce Anderson and Eileen Jewell shared the low putts crown while Bev McMillan and Millie Sowers split second.

Dora Gustafson walked away with the low gross title in the third flight, followed by Mary Check, Gladys Johnson, Betty Nichols and Millie Snarburg for second and Inger Pace, Margie Lindsay and Lois Westover in third.

Vivian Poust had low net with Lois Tannler second and Virginia Strom finishing third. Alda Mathis and Pat Stearns each captured a share of the low putts crown and Helen Knorpp took home second place.

Dorothy Higgins was all alone for the low gross title in fourth flight while Shirley Dutches and Phyl Smith took second and third, respectively.

Market Retains Unbeaten Record

Market Street remained undefeated in Tabby Football action Wednesday with a 19-6 trouncing of North Warren.

Allegheny Valley also won its first game of the year, to move them into sole position of third place in Division C.

By virtue of a 6-6 tie with Youngsville, Sugar Grove held on to first place by half a game.

Market Street will make up a game against Allegheny later this week, and on Monday, Russell and Market will battle for the top spot in their division.

The standings are as follows:

DIVISION C
Russell	6-0
Market	5-0
Allegheny	1-0
Jefferson	0-0
DIVISION D

Low net title was a tie between Mary Stafford and Peg Whiteman. Angie Cramer grabbed second place and Irene Krimmel, Myrtle Mader and Betty Maniakas split third. Marge Trubic and Wanda Mastrian shared top recognition for low putts and Sandie Carlson and Clara DuMond tied for second spot.

Most improved golfer awards went to Barb Swanson, first flight; Beulah Polly, second flight; Peg Whiteman, third and Betty Maniakas, fourth.

Four members, Wanda Arnold; Elvia Hendrickson, Marge Lindsay and Barb Swanson recorded perfect attendance during the year.

No putt greens prize was won by Red Walsh. Dora Gustafson, Gen Hennessey and Eileen Jewell received consolation gifts.

Hunting Dog Field Techniques Shown At Annual Outdoor Writers' Meeting

By BOB CLEVER

A demonstration of the technique of bird dog training was a feature of activities this past weekend at Lake Wallenpaupak where members of the Pennsylvania Outdoor Writers Association met for their annual fall meeting.

The Pennsylvania Game Commission held its biennial Big Game Awards Dinner at Tanglwood Lodge Saturday night; writers toured nearby Shohola Falls game management area; they fished for trout in the lake and for Kokanee at Upper Woods Pond, guests of the Pennsylvania Game Commission; their wives were guests of the Lake Wallenpaupak Association for a brunch tour, and members were guests at other functions of John-Lawrence Associates (PennDart Co.), Harrisburg and Tanglwood Estates.

Saturday morning, Nick Sisley demonstrated training techniques for field dogs. He is a freelance writer, nationally-known dog trainer and editor of Gun Dog Magazine. He was assisted by Robert Parlamen, information and education officer, PGS at Franklin.

Live Chukar partridge were planted in an open field. Controlling each dog by a restraining leash, Sisley demonstrated the techniques of teaching ranging, holding point and retrieving with pointers and setters.

The dog trainer from Appolo said that he will not accept a dog for training for a period of less than two months, although he has had success in a shorter time. He said that not all dogs respond quickly to training in spite of their lineage, although good lines are desirable.

Used in the demonstration were Buster, a three-year old pointer owned by Bill Shipley, Charles Town, W. Va.; Belle, a two-year setter bitch owned by Dr. Jessie Littleton, Sayre (Near Bradford), and Babe, a two-year old pointer bitch owned by George Mauers-berger, Morristown, Ohio.

Restraining ropes of lengths varying from 10 feet to 25 feet were demonstrated by Sisley. He explained that seldom do the ropes become tangled during free running, which is the main objection of many to this training device. The advantage is that the trainer can grab the trailing rope to restrain or direct the dog's response at the appropriate moment in training.

Sisley received support from an equally renowned expert in his statement that hunting dogs can make good house dogs and vice versa.

Roger Latham, outdoor editor of the Pittsburgh Press, said that in his experience the Golden Retriever, especially, makes an exceptionally good combination. Close living with the owner helps the dog establish a line of communication with the owner to better understand commands both men agreed.

Sisley emphasized that such a pet-hunter shouldn't on the first day of hunting be expected to be a whirlwind, if not given some pre-season exercise. He demonstrated the harness and explained the technique used for road exercising dogs.

Sisley said that just as in raising children, the trainer, if he is a good one, will understand that each dog is an individual. He said that retrievers and pointers will not instinctively point and retrieve. Regardless of lineage, he said, dogs will react to training with varying degrees of perfection.

THE KILL, THE RETRIEVE

Shipley of Charles Town, W. Va. Buster had pointed the bird placed by Robert Parlamen, information and education officer for the Pennsylvania Game Commission, Franklin, assisting in the demonstration. Chukars may be shot in this manner since they are not classed a game species. (Photos by Clever)

ABA PREVIEW

Stars' Repeat Chances Dim

By BERT ROSENTHAL

Associated Press Sports Writer
The stars shone over—and in—Utah during the 1970-71 American Basketball Association season, but the Stars' chances of repeating as league champions appear dim for the 1971-72 campaign, which begins Oct. 13.

Not that the Stars have lost any of their lustre, it's just that several of the other clubs have improved tremendously and appear set to overtake Utah.

The Stars, however, will not be pushovers. They have the same starting team that won the championship, with Zelmo Beaty at center, Red Robbins and Willie Wise at forwards, and Glen Combs and Merv Jackson at guards. High-scoring Jimmy Jones, a four-year ABA veteran picked up from Memphis this week, could replace Jackson at guard.

But they did lose one key man—Coach Bill Sharman. He left to take over the coaching reins of the Los Angeles Lakers of the National Basketball Association and was replaced by LaDell Andersen of Utah State. Indiana, which beat Utah for the regular season Western Division title but was beaten by the Stars in seven games in the playoffs, had the best front line in the league in center Mel Daniels, the ABA's Most Valuable Player and rebounding leader, and forwards Roger Brown and Bob Netolicky.

Now, Indiana Coach Bob Leonard is experimenting with Brown in backcourt to make room for rookie Darnell Hilman from San Jose State. Another highly touted Pacer rookie is George McGinnis from Indiana University.

The league's two most heralded rookies, however, are seven-footers Artis Gilmore of Kentucky and Jim McDaniels of Carolina.

The 7-2 Gilmore gives the Colonels an outstanding big man to compete with Beaty and Daniels, and enables new Coach Joe Mullaney to move defending scoring champion Dan Issel from center to his more natural position of forward. With such other veterans as Cincy Powell, Jim Ligon, Darel Carrier and Lou Dampier, the Colonels are considered the pre-season favorites in the Eastern Division.

Carolina, with the seven-foot All-American McDaniels, also has a new coach in Tom Meschery, a 6-11 rookie in Randy Denton from Duke, jumping Joe Caldwell at forward and holdovers George Lehmann, Larry Miller and Bob Verga.

Virginia, which came up with a prize rookie last season in 27-point scorer Charlie Scott, has two outstanding newcomers now in Julius Erving from Massachusetts and Willie Sojourner from Weber State. However, the Squires also are hurting with guard Mike Barrett out for the season with a broken wrist bone and forward Doug Moe questionable for the opener with an injured left knee.

The New York Nets, following a third-place finish in the East—return the same starting group, led by Rick Barry, the league's second best scorer with a 29.4 average. Joining Barry will be center Bill Paultz, forward Manny Leaks and guards Bill Melchioni and Joe DePre.

Pittsburgh has All-Star forward John Brisker and high-scoring George Carter, acquired from Virginia, but little else.

The colorful Floridians have a high-powered backcourt duo in Larry Jones and Mack Calvin, who combined for 51.5 points a game last season, and 6-9 Ira Harge at center, but have no big scorers at forwards.

Johnny Neumann, the nation's leading college scorer last season with an average of better than 40 points a game, should add a lot of color to the Memphis Pros.

Sooners To Trim Longhorns

By WILL GRIMSLEY
AP Special Correspondent
NEW YORK (AP) — Picking against Texas in football is like playing Russian Roulette with no empty chambers in the gun, but it's been a long, frustrating wait for Oklahoma and who has seen a road that has no turning? The Sooners and Michigan State, the underdog against powerful Michigan, receive our upset special designation this week. Last week: 42-21, .667. Season: 224-67, .700.

Picking fast and ducking later: SATURDAY
Oklahoma 17, Texas 10: Powerful Wishbone-T running attacks on a collision course. An edge to Quarterback Jack Mildren and the hungry Sooners.

Michigan State 10, Michigan 7: The Wolverines have all the horses, the Spartans have all the desire. The underdogs throttle Michigan's touchdown parade.

Cornell 33, Princeton 14: After losing to Columbia, the Tigers will find Ed Marinaro a bitter chaser.

Air Force 25, Southern Methodist 13: Both teams keep the ball in the air—why shouldn't the Air Force be more at home there, Southern California 26, Oregon 13: The Trojans are relieved to get out of Okie country in one piece.

Harvard 17, Columbia 14: Two miracles in a row are too much to ask of the Morningside Heights Lions.

Penn State 25, Army 10: The Black Knights have scored two upsets. Penn State ends the impossible dream.

Louisiana State 19, Florida 14: Florida's John Reaves will find concentration tough in LSU's den—and din.

Georgia 20, Mississippi 17: It's hard to bounce back from a licking such as Ole Miss took from Alabama last week.

Nebraska 36, Missouri 13: If Missouri was saving its strength in the Army game, it will go for naught.

Tennessee 28, Georgia Tech 17: Tech has been an in-and-out team, the Volunteers deal another out.

Washington 34, Stanford 7: The Huskies' Sonny Sixkiller fattens his statistics.

The others:

Bitter Williams Assails Eagles' Owner Over Firing

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Jerry Williams bitter and disappointed over his firing Wednesday as head coach of the Philadelphia Eagles, called the owner of the National Football League team "a man without courage and character."

"This is the first time that I have been accused of not having courage. I don't know what he means," owner Leonard Tose said at a news conference to introduce new Head Coach Ed Khayat. Khayat, defensive line coach of the Eagles placed tackle on their 1960 championship team, was named to succeed Williams for the remainder of the season.

"Unfortunately I was working for a man who is without courage and character," Williams said in a statement. "I was offered a sizeable sum of money to resign, but to accept a bribe of that nature is to lower myself to his depths."

Williams, 47, in his third year with the Eagles heard the news at a meeting with Tose and General Manager Pete Retzlaff, whose own career is tied closely with Williams' performance.

"It is not a happy occurrence to release a coach at the beginning of the season," Tose said. "But actually it is not the beginning of the season because Williams has been in the job for nearly 2 1/2 years."

The Eagle players, in a statement led by linebacker Ron

Porter said of the firing that it was "a grave injustice that one man must bear the brunt of an entire organization's shortcomings."

"We as players have failed Coach Williams in our performance on the field and must take responsibility for what has happened," the statement said.

"I'm a fan," Tose said. "All I know is what the fans have seen. And they have said we haven't done the job we are capable of doing. We just needed a change. It was an accumulation of things. The huge lopsided scores, the manner of the defeats."

Tose said he had asked Retzlaff to suggest to Williams that it might be better for all concerned if Williams resign. He said he realized that this would hurt Williams livelihood and that if he resigned "I said he (Retzlaff) could give him another year's salary. I didn't want to hurt Jerry."

Williams is paid about $40,000 a year.

Khayat, who was told of the decision before practice was to get underway, said he would make every effort to win Sunday's game against Minnesota.

"What we need is to win a game," he said. "When we do that it will restore our confidence."

The Eagles under Williams were 7-22-2, including a 3-10-1 record last year and three humiliating defeats in their first three games this year in which they scored only once from scrimmage.

Earlier this week, Williams blasted what he called his team's lack of effort in its 31-3 loss to San Francisco Sunday and levied fines on several players. They were not identified.

One-Stroke Victory In CVCC Tourney

The foursome of Bill Simonsen, Dr. Harold Reinhard, Don Lester and Bob Garrison scored a single stroke victory at the Coneywango Valley Country Club's Breakfast-Glo tourney Oct. 3.

The four ball total of 301 edged out the team of Emmy Morrison, Dr. Art O'Connor, Rip Burgett and Ross Kremer.

Four shots back at 305 was Bob Wilson, Ed Slick, Guy Grimaldi and Charles Kroeger. In fourth place, with a score of 310 was Palmer Davis, Rocky Logan, Wally Rogers and Dr. Ross Bryan.

Grid Contest Game Won't Count

Due to an error somewhere along the line, the Oregon State-California game listed in Tuesday's football contest failed to appear in Wednesday's paper. The judges have determined, therefore, to eliminate it and the game will not count in this week's contest.

Well, it hardly seems that a year has rolled around since the last Tidoute fishing tournament, but it has. Nor does it seem that there have been 11 of these events, none of which I have missed, since the meeting held by the village's civic leaders to determine if they would accept the invitation to host the tournament as the Pennsylvania segment of the "World Series of Fishing". It really doesn't seem that long ago.

However, I said then and I'll repeat, the true value of the tournament, regardless of who won or lost, would be the bringing together of expert fishermen to the benefit of the novice or occasional angler. And I feel pretty good that this is just the way it has worked out. For I don't think anyone, including myself, has attended any one of the tournaments without picking up some pointers that have helped him or her in their fishing practices.

To me, it has always appeared that the benefits so derived is a major reason for attending and participating in the Tidoute tournament.

However, others get their greatest bang out of the competition and the festival-like activities going on about town during both days of the tournament. Which is alright, I guess, if either of these happens to be what they consider as their "thing."

And there are others, of course, who get their "bang" out of just dropping by the water company office (tournament headquarters) to view the big fish displayed in a huge box-like container filled with ice. And I'll tell you, some of those fish will really knock your eyes out. They're bigger, even, than "the one that got away." And it's good to know that all the while you're tossing your lure into the waters of the Old Allegheny that there's fish of that size around to possibly give you a tussle.

So you can bet your bottom dollar that I'll be right down there at Tidoute both days of the tournament. Not to fish, but just to nose around picking up a few tips and associate with the competing anglers. The reason I won't be fishing is very simple. Either it will be because I don't want to be shown up by the good rodbenders, or because Sunday fishing would require me to get up in the morning—take your pick.

But I'll be there. And I would suggest that others who have the time to do so this weekend make it a point to show up there sometime on Saturday or Sunday, or both days. There's plenty to interest the entire family going on, and there's that air of excitement that prevails at any contest from a chess match to a professional football game.

But for those who are going to get really serious about becoming Pennsylvania's king of fisherman, there's some facts to be had. Such as the fact that cash prizes can be won on Saturday without even qualifying for the Sunday fish-offs. Which ranges from $25 to the person presenting the largest musky, northern, walleye, or bass; to $25 for the largest carp and $50 to the person presenting the longest "citation" fish in each of the four species.

For those who qualify for the Sunday event, there'll also be gobs of cash to be had, with the $100 to the kingpin being the top payoff.

Fishing on Saturday is sort of an open-end affair as entries will be accepted up until 10 o'clock that night at the headquarters. Sunday fishing will be limited to those who qualify on Saturday, each fisherman accompanied by a referee. And if I forgot to mention it, points will be awarded on Saturday for fish entered (musky, 10 points; northerns, 8 points; walleye pike, 4 points; bass, 2 points) with high point men in each division participating for the marbles on Sunday.

I talked with Jim King, tournament director, on Tuesday. He doesn't think the lowering of the water level in the river will throw the catch off to any great extent, and he feels the weed problem will be less this year than in some years past. My personal observation would be that a weed problem isn't even going to exist. What few weeds there are floating in the river now are pretty well rotted and if a few are picked up they are easily cleaned from the lure or bait.

So the 12th annual Pennsylvania Fishing Tournament, which has brought statewide acclaim to the village of Tidoute, should be a bang-up success this coming weekend. And the fisherman who misses it is certainly doing himself-herself a disfavor.

It's unquestionably the place to be—and I'll be there.

State House Defeats Prison Reform Bill

HARRISBURG (AP)—A bill to let prisoners work their way out of jail was defeated, 93-65, in the House Wednesday after a rambling two-hour debate. But supporters, thinking the 44 absent legislators could push the bill across, immediately moved to reconsider the measure. Chief sponsor K. Leroy Irvis, the Democratic floor leader, said he plans to call the bill up again when the House reconvenes on Monday.

"We ought to get the nine votes then," he said; 102 are needed for passage. Minimum sentences would be eliminated under the proposal in all cases except those involving less than two-year total terms. Inmates sentenced to life, however, would be eligible for parole after 15 years.

Crux of the bill is the provision to create rehabilitation programs which would carry credit towards parole. The Bureau of Corrections would arrange the programs, tailor them to the prisoner's needs and advise the inmates of the time he could shave from his sentence by completing it.

The programs would be academic and vocational training, employment, group and individual counseling and psychotherapy, religious instruction, community relationships and others.

The Board of Probation and Parole would determine when the convict is sufficiently rehabilitated to be released.

The Appropriations Committee estimated the first year cost of the programs would be $162,769, Irvis said, and six years from now, $347,542.

"This legislation in my opinion is a complete reversal of what our problem with criminals is all about," said Rep. Harry R. J. Comer, D-Philadelphia. "If we should be foolish enough to pass House Bill 680, we would literally be opening wide our prison doors and turning these animals loose on society."

Another objection, voiced by the chairman of the Law and Order Committee, Rep. William H. Eckensberger Jr., was that the proposal would eliminate the deterrent effect of criminal sentencing.

"How can anyone say that people are not deterred from committing crime because of the sentence?" the Lehigh County Democrat said.

Joining Eckensberger and Comer to defeat the measure were 24 other Democrats and 39 Republicans. Favoring it were 56 Democrats and 37 Republicans. Thirty Democrats and 14 Republicans were absent.

Arguing for the bill, Irvis said the lawmakers would have to decide if convicts are animals or human beings.

"The gentleman who founded Pennsylvania was a convict, William Penn," Irvis noted. Aside from the moral reason, he added, the bill has a practical effect of making better citizens of the convicts who are returned to society.

The House adjourned for this week after the vote. The Senate did not meet Wednesday.

Two Top UMW Officials Fined And Sentenced

PITTSBURGH (AP)—Two top officials of United Mine Workers District 5 were handed suspended prison sentences and fined $500 each Wednesday on conviction of conspiracy and falsifying union records.

In addition, each was placed on a year's probation.

The sentences were handed down by U.S. District Court Judge Hubert I. Teitelbaum just five months after District President Michael Budzanoski and secretary-treasurer John Seddon were found guilty of four counts alleging violations of the Labor Management Reporting and Disclosure Act of 1959.

The two were accused of issuing and approving false union expense vouchers.

Appearing for sentencing, Budzanoski, a loquacious, dapper man, said:

"In my heart I know I'm innocent. I stand before you with a clear conscience."

He told the judge, "I have worked hard for my country and my fellow man all my life and I have a joyous and grateful heart because hundreds of persons have contacted me to express trust in me."

Seddon, an aging slight man, said:

"I didn't realize we were doing anything wrong."

Teitelbaum said he was "greatly impressed" by the presentencing reports he received on the character of the two defendants.

Attorneys for both Budzanoski and Seddon said they would appeal the conviction to the U. S. 3rd District Court in Philadelphia.

The labor act, also known as the Landrum-Griffin Act, permits union officials convicted of violations of the act to hold office until all appeals are exhausted.

Despite the fact that appeals could take years, it wasn't sure whether Budzanoski and Seddon wouldn't lose their jobs anyway.

Both were incumbents in the district's last election, last December, and were apparent winners, but the election has been contested and is under review by the U.S. Labor Department, which could order a new election.

Candidates opposing Budzanoski and Seddon were backed by the dissident Miners for Democracy, which filed the protests with the labor department.

Budzanoski and Seddon were brought to trial earlier this year after the government presented what it called evidence that the officials of the Pittsburgh-based district had conspired to falsify expense vouchers and pump money into the election campaign of UMW President W. A. "Tony" Boyle, who at the time was running against challenger Joseph A. "Jock" Yablonski.

Offers To Help Persons Taking GED Test

Instruction for preparation of candidates for the GED test at Youngsview High School will be given provided there is sufficient demand.

Those adults, ages 18 or over, who would like to receive instruction in getting their high school diplomas will be registered at the school at 7 p.m., Monday, Oct. 12.

Those who plan to participate will be instructed in the following area: Correctness of Expression, Interpretation of Literary Materials, Interpretive Readings in the Field of Natural Sciences and General Mathematical Knowledge.

Cost of the program is $30 for registration and approximately $3 for the manual. If enough adults register, classes will begin Monday, Oct. 18 at YHS.

GED tests will be given for those who do not receive instruction Saturday, Oct. 9 and Oct. 16. Those interested in taking the test should get in touch with Frank Christy, Warren County School District, 723-6900. Additional information in the instructional phase of the program may call Felix Matthews, 563-7573.

Pa. Medical Association Proposes New Foundation

PITTSBURGH (AP)—The Pennsylvania Medical Association has proposed a state Medical Care Foundation which would take over administration of Medicare and provide a prepaid health care plan for citizens.

"The Foundation is designed to assume the responsibility for the cost and quality control of the health care benefit provisions of its plan, by expanding or supplementing the cost control mechanisms and underwriting techniques presently utilized by organizations like Blue Cross, Blue Shield," a medical association report said. The plan was approved Wednesday by some 300 delegates to the Association's third annual meeting.

The association said the Foundation would benefit patients by providing "a maximum of freedom of choice of both anticipated broad base of hospitals and other institutions."

In addition, patients would gain from the projected economies of the Foundation, allowing them to elect broader benefits, or continue existing benefits at reduced costs, the association said.

"Physicians would benefit from the program because they would be allowed maximum flexibility in selecting the type of practice (solo or group)," the report said, "and the method of reimbursement they desire, based on the usual, customary, and reasonable criteria with reduced paperwork."

During the concluding day of the Association's meeting, the delegates also approved a continuing education institute, requiring physicians to obtain 150 hours of educational instruction every three years, and agreed to limit their prescriptions of amphetamines to avoid abuse of the drugs.

Erie County Judge Lindley McClelland ordered the 87 teachers back to class and directed that both the teachers' association and the school board resume contract negotiations.

If there is no settlement within two weeks, McClelland said, the dispute will be submitted to binding arbitration.

The North East strike was the longest running work stoppage in any district in the state, lasting more than five weeks.

School officials in both North East and Burgettstown say they'll have to revise this year's school calendar to enable compliance with the state's mandated term of 180 days.

Final Teacher Strike Is Ended In State

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A rash of pre-term teacher strikes in Pennsylvania, at one time numbering 13, apparently came to an end Wednesday when teachers in Erie and Washington counties returned to their classrooms.

A pre-dawn ratification of a new contract sent some 135 teachers in the Burgettstown School District near Washington back to school to begin in-service training, prior to the opening of 1971-72 classes Thursday. They had been on strike 32 days.

Teachers in the North East School District near Erie taught classes Wednesday for the first time this year, but did so under court order.

Ax Slayer Found Guilty; Gets Life In Prison

PITTSBURGH (AP)—A young engineer who admitted killing his estranged sweetheart with a bush ax as she lay in her bed was found guilty of first-degree murder Wednesday and sentenced to life in prison.

"We had been as happy as any two people could have been and it was the last thing I wanted to do, to hurt her," the defendant John Minarik, 23, told the court.

Minarik testified during the three-day non-jury trial that he and Rosemary Kascuta had broken off their engagement, but that he had hopes of a reconciliation up until two days before her death.

He said he didn't remember killing Miss Kascuta and that he had no idea where he obtained the bush ax.

The victim's mother testified that she had heard sounds coming from her daughter's room last Feb. 7 and when she opened the door she saw Minarik standing over the girl's bed. He then fled through a window.

Minarik was arrested within hours, driving his car the wrong way down a one-way street. Police said they found three knives on him.

"I just can't put the pieces together," a composed Minarik told the court. "While I was in jail I searched my mind and soul and asked myself what happened. It doesn't do much good now to say I'm sorry. She was a very beautiful person."

Minarik holds an engineering degree from Carnegie-Mellon University where he met Miss Kascuta.

Minarik's sentence was handed down by Allegheny County Criminal Court Judge Joseph Ridge.

Mina Wales Weds Jeffrey Hunter

At Wellsboro United Methodist Church

Mina Louise Wales became the bride of Jeffrey Lee Hunter in a ceremony held October 2, 1971 at 2 p.m. in the United Methodist Church, Wellsboro, Pennsylvania. The Rev. William Snyder officiated.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Wales, Millerton, Pennsylvania. The bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Clara Hunter, 283 Buchanan street, Warren, and the late Lee Hunter.

Music for the double ring ceremony was supplied by organist Mrs. Bonnie Miller, and soloist Alan Shumway, both of Wellsboro.

Given by her father in marriage, the bride was wearing a gown of white silk shantung and taffeta. The bodice was accented with self buttons and Venice lace trim, giving a jumper effect. Venice lace formed the mandarin collar and trimmed the sleeves. The empire waistline was banded with lace above an A-line skirt. A tubular detachable train edged in lace cascaded from the back waistline of the gown.

A detachable bouffant and single cathedral length bridal veil was attached to a matching lace and fabric Juliet hat.

The bride carried a cascade of phalaenopsis orchids and stephanotis, ivy, and greens placed atop a prayer book.

Georgia Wales, Millerton, a sister of the bride, was chosen as maid of honor. She was dressed in a floor length purple saki linen gown with purple velvet ribbon and mukti re-embroidery accenting the mandarin collar. A matching purple linen Juliet hat was attached to a short double pouf veil and a waistline veil of purple illusion.

The bridesmaids, who were dressed in gowns styled the same as the maid of honor, were Florence Wheeler, Elmira, N. Y., a sister of the bride; Joan Grantier, Canton, Pa.; and Susan Garvey, Lakewood, N. Y., a niece of the bridegroom. The flower girl was Christine

MRS. JEFFREY HUNTER

Falls, Pine City, N. Y., a cousin of the bride. She was dressed identically to the attendants, except for a hat designed in a bonnet style.

Robert Garvey, Jamestown, N. Y. served as best man. Michael Cassey, Warren; Craig Zebrowski, Lakewood, N. Y.; and Michael Wales, a brother of the bride, served as ushers. Andrew and Thomas Wales, brothers of the bride, were pages.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Wales chose a rust color double knit dress with a suede vest and a brown felt hat. She wore a corsage of gold and rust mums. The bridegroom's mother wore a three piece double knit green printed brocade dress.

A reception for the newlyweds was held for 150 guests at the Penn Wells Hotel, Wellsboro.

For her honeymoon trip to Canada, the new Mrs. Hunter changed to a lavender double knit pant suit.

The couple's new address is 202 Oneida ave., Warren.

The bride is a 1968 graduate of Williamson High School and a 1971 graduate of Williamsport Hospital School of Nursing. The bridegroom is a 1967 graduate of Warren Area High School, and served two years in the U.S. Army, including a tour of duty in Vietnam.

A linen shower was given for the bride by Sharon Falls, Pine City, N. Y. A kitchen shower was given by Erma Wales of Millerton, and a variety shower was given by the ladies of her church.

The family of the bridegroom entertained the wedding party at the Penn Wells Hotel at a rehearsal dinner.

Library Story Hour Registration Opens

Mrs. Ellen H. Eberly reminds parents of pre-school children that openings are still available for the pre-school story hour sessions to be held this fall at the Warren Public Library.

Response thus far has been gratifying, but additional children can be accommodated if registrations are made promptly.

The story hours are to be held Wednesdays from 10 to 10:30 a.m. and from 1:30 to 2 p.m. Pre-schoolers must be registered to attend and must be 3½ to 5 at the time of registration. Each group is to be limited to 15 children, so parents are urged to register their children at the earliest opportunity.

Registrations will be accepted until October 15 at the Warren Public Library. Parents may register their children at the library or by telephone and should specify whether they prefer morning or afternoon sessions.

Pre-School Mothers Meet

Mrs. Ellen Eberly presented the program at the October meeting of the Warren Pre-School Mother's Club held Monday at the home of Mrs. William Peterson, 310 Laurel st.

Mrs. Eberly spoke on "Pre-School Reading."

Mrs. Raymond Morrison reported the sidewalk festival project had been very successful.

Mrs. Robert Ruhlman was hostess for the evening, and followed the theme of Halloween in her refreshments.

Members are to be notified by telephone when plans are completed for the Halloween party for their children. Mrs. Donald Dinsmoor is chairman for the party, with Mrs. John Tassone and Mrs. Robert Ruhlman serving on the committee.

The next meeting is to be held at 309 S. State st., North Warren. "Hair Styling" is scheduled to be the topic.

Teardrop-shaped mistletoe seeds explode from their pods with a velocity of about 45 feet a second, the National Geographic says. Pods can fire the seeds as far as 33 feet.

Market Street PTA to Hold Discussion

All parents of children enrolled in Market Street school will have an opportunity to quiz the school principal, Larry

Mong, Monday, October 11 at 8 p.m. when the PTU presents "Everything You've Always Wanted to Know About Market Street School.... But Never Dared Ask".

Assisting in the program will be panel members Mrs. Henri LeMeur, Mrs. Robert Sokolski, Michael Mead and Charles Tranter with the Rev. Richard Baker as moderator. Mr. Mong will be on the receiving end of the firing line and the audience of parents will be encouraged to participate with their questions as well.

Monday night's event opens the PTU fall season and classrooms will be open for parent visitation. Membership chairman, Mrs. Marvin Billow, will receive dues and asks parents to support the organization by joining up at the meeting.

The Candy Cane Twirling Corp has just received word it placed second in parade competition at the Wattsburg Fair held in September. The corp finished its season by competing in eight parades, placing in five, and attending two which were non-competitive. Plans are being made for the Halloween Parade sponsored by the YMCA, and the Christmas Parade held in November.

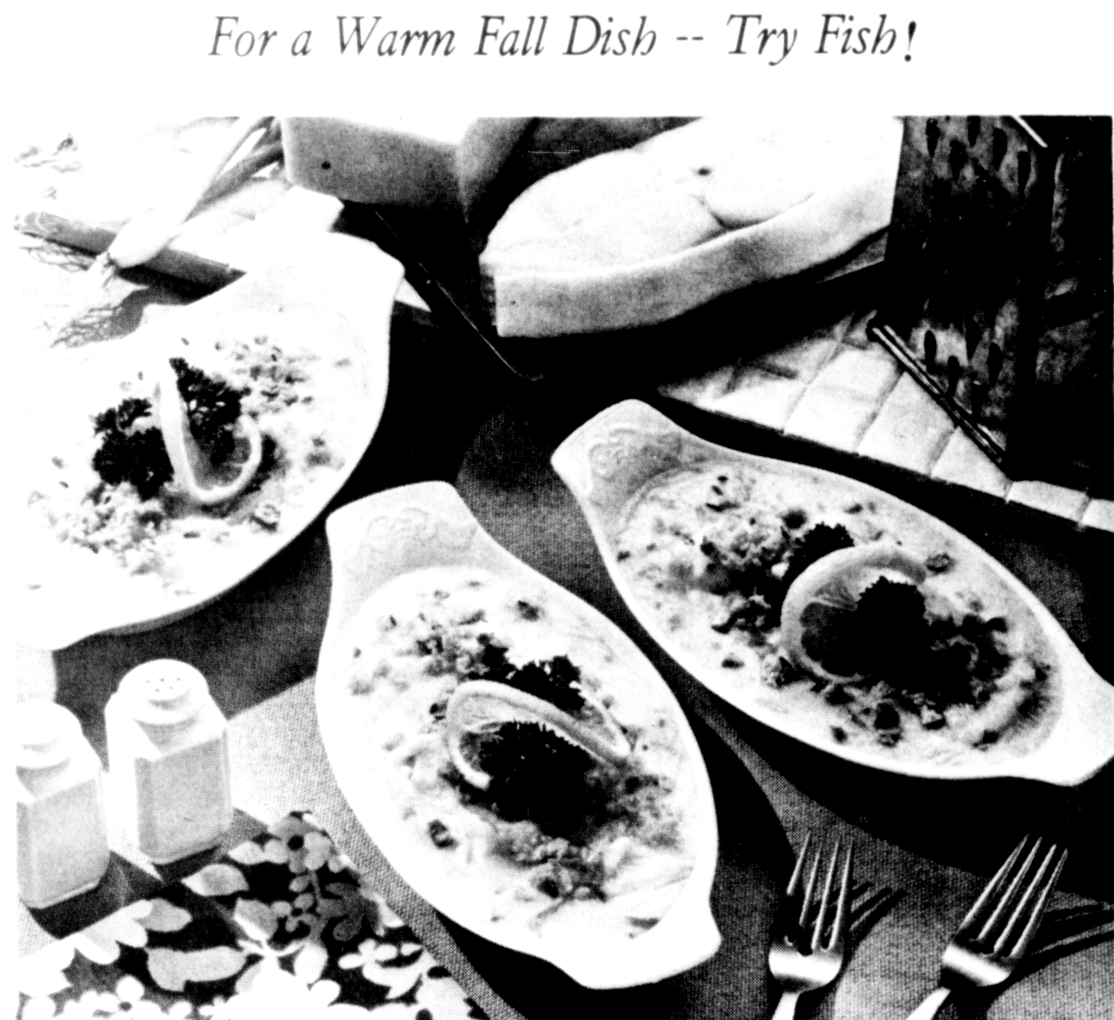

The Home League of the Salvation Army is to hold its regular weekly meeting Thursday, Oct. 7 at 7:30 p.m. on the second floor of the citadel. The program is to be on "Service" with Dorothy McCauley as leader. The topic is to be "Babette's Surprise". Rosie Imhoff and Hallie Covell are to be the hostesses.

The regular monthly meeting of the Fifth Wheel of the Warren Welcome Wagon is to be held Thursday at 7:30 p.m. at the Pennsylvania Gas Co. The program is to be a cooking demonstration of desserts and fondue.

HALIBUT AU GRATIN

baked fish topped with toasted crumbs

For a family or company dinner, halibut baked in a creamy cheese sauce is a delicious entree you will want to add to your collection of favorites. Including fish in your menu plans is one of the best ways to keep them exciting and interesting, and halibut offers wide versatility in preparation that makes it a very popular choice.

Bite-size pieces of halibut are poached until they flake when tested with a fork. While the halibut simmers, mushrooms and green onions are sautéed until tender. Flour, milk and seasonings are blended with the vegetables to make a smooth creamy sauce. Grated sharp cheese and sherry are added for a flavor duet that is superbly complementary to the delicate halibut.

The moist tender pieces of halibut are gently stirred into the cheese sauce and the mixture is divided among individual baking dishes. A sprinkling of buttered crumbs form a crunchy topping as the entree bakes. Lemon and parsley attractively garnish each serving.

HALIBUT AU GRATIN

2 pounds halibut
¼ cup butter or margarine
2 tablespoons chopped green onions
¼ cup chopped mushrooms
¼ cup flour
½ teaspoon salt
Dash white pepper
1¾ cups milk
3 tablespoons sherry wine
½ cups grated sharp Cheddar cheese

¼ cup bread crumbs, browned in 1 tablespoon butter.

To prepare halibut — Cut halibut in bite-size pieces and place in large saucepan or frying pan with 4 cups cold water, 1½ teaspoons salt, 4 peppercorns, ¼ cup vinegar, 2 slices lemon, 1 slice onion and sprig of parsley. Cover, bring to boil and simmer 3 minutes or until halibut flakes when tested with fork.

For halibut au gratin — melt butter in saucepan and saute onions and mushrooms until tender. Blend in flour, salt and pepper. Add milk and cook, stirring, until thickened. Stir in sherry and grated cheese and heat until cheese melts. Gently stir in halibut. Divide mixture into individual baking dishes and sprinkle with buttered crumbs. Bake at 400 degrees for 10 minutes. Garnish with lemon and parsley. Makes 6 servings.

Ann Landers

Answers Your Problems

DEAR ANN LANDERS: We hear a lot about ecology and the environmental crisis these days. Too many people say, "Yeah -- it's terrible, but what can I do about it?" I have an answer.

You can walk instead of ride. Put on comfortable shoes and start earlier. You'll feel better for having done so. If you can't walk, buy a bike, or join a car pool. Turn off a light. Turn off a faucet. Get mad at polluters. Report them. Write to your congressman about what goes on in your community -- I mean those big industries that are lousing up the air and killing our beautiful lakes and rivers. Call your councilman. Pick up a candy wrapper. Attend a City Planning meeting -- or ANY meeting where pollution is being discussed. Organize a glass, aluminum or paper collection. Clean up the park near your home. Give a damn. Read a book and learn the facts. Make a speech. Name names. Plant a tree. Plant a thought. Return your empties. Vote. Write your editor. Love your country, don't leave it. Stick around and clean it up. -- O. Hi-O

DEAR O.: Beautiful! Let's hear it for a better quality of life for more people. Thanks for your letter. I just turned off a light.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: There's a woman in this town who is a professional volunteer do-gooder. People run when they see her coming. She always has a handful of banquet tickets or chances on a Chevrolet or a trip to Las Vegas.

Last week she caught me twice -- once for recreational equipment for handicapped children, and again for a needy family, burned out in a fire. Next week she heads a drive to buy a kidney machine.

This woman is likable but no one can run into her without having it cost them money. Please print my letter so she (and others like her) will see how their constant mooching looks to others. Thanks. -- Lancaster, Penn.

DEAR L.P.: Of course it's tiresome -- being hit repeatedly for donations, tickets and worthy causes -- but this woman (and others like her) aren't moochers. All they get out of it is sore feet -- and criticism from people like you. I've done a good bit of what you call "mooching" myself and I'm still at it -- not raffle tickets, but worthy causes -- and I can tell you, trying to raise money these days is very tough sledding. But somebody must do it, or a good many deserving projects would go down the drain.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Please tell me how to cut clean from a very sweet guy who is Boreville. Maxwell is what every mother dreams of for her 17-year-old daughter -- in fact, this could be the problem. My mother thinks he is MARVELOUS.

Max is nice looking, a neat dresser, well mannered, says all the right things, makes honor grades, plays the piano, and his dad is a doctor. But he's a sleeping pill. For example, on our last date he brought magazine articles which he read aloud. Then he asked me to listen to a speech which he gives before the De Molays next week. To top it all off he brought along a few hundred snapshots from his trip.

Max called three times last week and quick thinking saved me. But I'm running out of excuses. Why can't I tell him he bores me and end it? Mom says, "Don't you dare!" Help me, please. -- Two Faced In Martin's Ferry

Dear T.F.: Why hurt the guy needlessly? Somewhere there's a gal who would love to look at Max's snapshots and listen to him read articles. (It beats sitting home alone on Saturday night.) Do THREE people a favor and fix up Max with a friend.

CONFIDENTIAL TO WAS IT FUNNY OR NOT: To ME, it was not funny, but then not all people agree on humor. I do not find humor in anything that is hurtful or degrading to another person. The person who can laugh at himself, in my opinion, possesses a beautiful sense of humor.

What awaits you on the other side of the marriage veil? How can you be sure your marriage will work? Read Ann Landers' booklet, "Marriage -- What To Expect." Send your request to Ann Landers in care of your newspaper enclosing 50 cents in coin and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope.

MR. AND MRS. ROBERT MAST

Margo Louise Finlan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Finlan, Pittsfield, and Robert Julian Mast, son of Mr. and Mrs. Julian J. Mast, Tionesta, exchanged wedding vows at the Evangelical United Methodist Church, Youngsville, August 14, 1971.

Rev. Eugene Donelson, pastor of the Corry Methodist Church officiated at the double ring ceremony. Janis Jackson, Youngsville, supplied organ music for the ceremony.

The bridegroom's mother styled and made the gowns for the bride and her attendants.

Escorted to the altar by her father, the bride was dressed in a floor length gown of white dotted Swiss, trimmed in lace, pearls, and pink satin ribbon. The gown was styled with an empire waistline, standup collar, and long sleeves with buttoned cuffs.

Her floor length veil was secured by a Juliet cap of daisies and pearls trimmed in pink satin ribbon. The bride carried a nosegay of pink roses and white carnations.

Millie Etter, Youngsville, a sister of the bride, was chosen matron of honor, and wore an empire style gown of nylon floral print, lined and trimmed in pink. She wore a matching head bow, and carried a nosegay of pink and white carnations.

Pamela Hutley, a bridesmaid, wore an empire style gown of nylon floral print lined and trimmed in lilac, and wore a matching head bow. She carried a nosegay of lilac and white carnations.

Debbie Mast, a sister of the bridegroom, served as the second bridesmaid, and wore an empire style gown of nylon floral print which was trimmed in and lined in yellow. She wore a matching head bow and carried a nosegay of yellow and white carnations.

Walter Kingston, Tionesta, was chosen as best man. Ushers were David Finlan, and Curt Schumacher, Blake Thomas and Richard Thompson served as groomsmen.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Finlan chose a blue dress with white accessories. Mrs. Mast wore a lavender dress with pink accessories. Each mother wore a white rose corsage.

A reception for the newlyweds was held in the church social rooms for about 200 guests.

After returning from a honeymoon in the south, the couple is residing in their new home on Smokey Hill, near Tionesta.

The bride is a 1968 graduate of Youngsville High School. She is employed as a registered X-ray technician at Warren General Hospital.

The bridegroom graduated from West Forest School in 1964, and served with the armed forces in Germany. He graduated from the Hershey State Police Academy and is now serving as a State Trooper at the Warren Substation.

Rev. Webster Meets Scottish Kin

The Rev. Paul J. Webster, pastor of the Bethlehem Covenant Church, recently met, for the first time, his three aunts and an uncle who live in Glasgow, Scotland.

Rev. Webster's father died a few months before he was born, and he said he never knew too much about his relatives in Scotland except what was learned through correspondence.

He said, "The meeting with the relation from Scotland was indeed, a very special meeting."

A family reunion was held in Webster, New York in September.

Exchange Student Tells Rotary Of U.S. Tour

Ricardo Alvarenga, from Varginha, M.C. Brazil, an International Rotary exchange student attending Warren Area High School, gave a slide talk at the regular Monday noon meeting of the Warren Rotary Club at the Blue Manor. The young ambassador of good will from the republic of Brazil, outlined his adventures during a 28-day summer vacation tour of the United States by about 200 Rotary Exchange students from 22 different countries.

His excellent slides which he photographed on the tour were most enjoyed. The speaker observed the difference of the many regions in this great land from one another, and the variety of people in various sections. He was impressed by the warm friendliness of the people in California.

The tour began at Greenfield, included Niagara Falls, with a brief tour through portions of Canada, making it an international excursion. High points of the tour included the Yosemite Valley, the Grand Canyon, San Francisco's Chinatown, Disneyland, Yellowstone Park, the Astrodome in Houston, Texas, and points in Alabama. The tour ended in Washington D.C. and Philadelphia.

The tour was made with four charter buses, and the young people stayed overnight chiefly in colleges and private homes, although at times in motels. Their cost was $250 each. Forty chaperones accompanied the group.

Ricardo expressed his deep appreciation for the hospitality he had received during his stay in Warren. He was presented by his current host, Charles Housel, who is director of International Youth Projects for the Warren Rotary Club. Director of International Service is Ray Marti.

SINGS AT GRID FETE
NEW YORK (AP) —Danny Scholl, former Broadway singer and actor and recipient of President Nixon's Handicapped American of the Year award, will sing the National Anthem at the National Football Foundation's 14th annual dinner in New York, Dec. 7.

Scholl had his career interrupted by World War II service when he suffered a broken back in a jeep accident while delivering seven enemy soldiers back to camp. After receiving two Bronze Stars he appeared in such shows as Oklahoma, Carousel and Damn Yankee.

Also present was a granddaughter Mrs. Russell Reed, her husband and family of RD Spartansburg. Her son Richard and family are spending a furlough from the Air Force with relatives and friends of

Travel Series Starts Soon

"Wheels Across America", the first program in Julian Gromer's travel and adventure series, will be aired Tuesday evening October 19 at 8 p.m. in the Warren Area High School auditorium.

The colorful film, sponsored by the Warren Rotary Club, depicts the travels of 40 college boys as they pedal across America on 10-speed bicycles.

Gromer himself will be on hand to describe the 3,700 mile trip the group took from San Francisco to New York City with stops along the way at such places as Yosemite National Park, Las Vegas, Hoover Dam and the Grand Canyon. The cyclists average 120 miles per day and end their journey in New York with a visit to the Statue of Liberty and other historic landmarks.

THE DOC WILLIAMS SHOW

Doc Williams Show Plays Warren Oct. 23

One of the most popular shows in the history of country music, the world famous DOC WILLIAMS group, will be on-stage at Warren High School in Warren, Oct. 23 for a two-hour country music concert and variety show beginning at 8 p.m., sponsored by Scandia Volunteer Fire Dept.

A "living legend" in country music, Doc Williams is universally accepted as one of the all-time greats in his field. Not only is he recognized as a fine singer and guitarist, but even more as a master showman. He and his group have been top-star regulars of the popular WVVA Jamboree U-S-A for over 33 consecutive years, longer than any other artist. A record that proves his staying power and universal appeal. Many popular recordings and albums, plus television appearances have also spread the fame of the Williams' name.

One of the things that make the Doc Williams Show so popular everywhere is the type of show presented. Not only is it fast-paced, entertaining country music, it's a "family show". Doc will present such features as Chickie Williams, singer of folk and country ballads whose recording of "Beyond the Sunset" skyrocketed her to nationwide fame. Also such musicians as Jack Jackson on electric bass and Curt Dillie on electric guitar and fiddle.

To add even more to their great "all-new" Doc Williams Show, Doc has added to the cast comedian "Dapper Dan" Martin.

Tickets may be purchased from members of the sponsoring organization, the Scandia Volunteer Fire Dept.

Thursday's TV Highlights

Ruth Buzzi, Erroll Garner and special guest-star Tim Conway will be Flip's guests on The Flip Wilson Show at 8:00 p.m. on Chs. 2, 6 and 12. Comedy highlights include a White House sketch in which Sonny the Janitor (Flip) helps the President (Conway) with his TV image and his forthcoming visit to Chinatown.

"Butterfield 8", a 1960 drama starring Elizabeth Taylor and Laurence Harvey will be featured on the CBS Thursday Night Movie at 9:00 p.m. on Chs. 4, 10 and 35. She stars as a fashion model whose emotional frustrations lead to a succession of ill-fated affairs.

Victor Jory stars as an old man determined to prove that he spent 10 years in prison for a murder he didn't commit, on Longstreet on Ch. 7 at 9:00 p.m. Two interested parties are involved: Longstreet and the real killer.

Dean Martin and Bing Crosby just with each other in between songs on The Dean Martin Show at 10:00 p.m. on Chs. 2, 6 and 12. Other contributions to the variety hour are the Ding-a-Ling Sisters, Kay Medford, Marian Mercer and Rip Taylor.

Indian Guides Back In Action

The tribes of the YMCA Indian Guides program are back in action. The program is a national Father and Son program sponsored locally by the Warren YMCA.

The program is designed for the busy father who wants to spend more time with his son during the latter's growth and development while boys have a chance to develop their own skill and initiative under the guidance of their fathers.

Purpose of the Indian Guides is to foster father and son companionship through tribe meetings, sleepovers, swim parties, constructive projects and many more fun-packed and exciting programs. The program is for boys 6 to 9 years old and their fathers.

For more information contact Joe Ferrara, youth director, Warren YMCA.

THE DODGE BOYS THINK ABOUT YOU.

WE THINK YOU OUGHT TO TEST-DRIVE A CAR BEFORE YOU BUY IT.

POLARA...WITH "THE QUIET INSIDE."

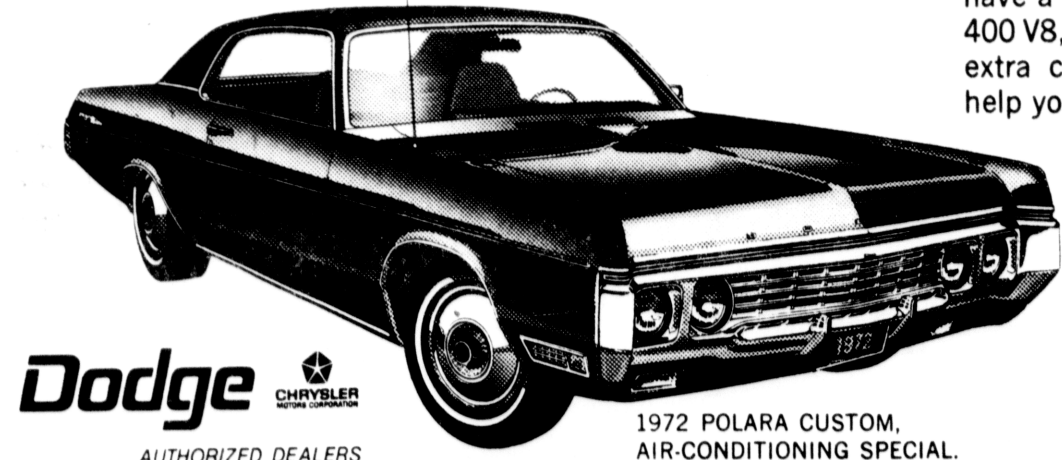

When you test-drive a new 1972 Dodge Polara, you'll really be riding in "quiet." Pay particular attention to the way Polara's Torsion-Quiet Ride isolates you from road and engine noises. We also think you'll like the way Polara handles on winding country roads. So come on in and take your own test drive today!

WE THINK YOU'LL LIKE OUR AIR-CONDITIONING SPECIAL.

When you buy a new Polara Custom specially equipped with popular features such as AM/FM radio, power disc brakes, and more, Dodge offers you 50 percent OFF the sticker price on factory air conditioning. Check it out today!

WE THINK YOU STILL WANT GAS ECONOMY.

That's why the standard engine on our 1972 Polara is the economical 318 V8 (instead of a larger V8, such as our competitors make you buy). The Dodge 318 V8 has a long and trusted heritage for brisk performance plus satisfying mileage economy. And it uses regular gas. Of course, if you want a larger Dodge V8, you have a choice of our 360 V8, 400 V8, or 440 V8, optional at extra cost. A test drive will help you decide.

Legion Auxiliary Plans Dinner For October 12

By PHYLLIS DAVIDSON

Mrs. Janie Penpethy and seven children of LaGrange, Ohio spent the weekend at the home of her sister, Mr. and Mrs. William Blankship.

George Beers spent Saturday at the home of his son, Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Beers of Girard.

Ed Okruch bagged a doe on the first day of archery season.

The American Legion Auxiliary Tureen Dinner will be Oct. 12 at 6:30 p.m. Officers for the 1971-1972 year are: Mrs. William Campbell, president; Mrs. George Zeedar, 1st vice pres.; Mrs. Irvin Stenberg, 2nd vice pres.; treasurer, Mrs. Andrew Misulich; secretary, Mrs. Ward Anderson; Chaplain, Mrs. Ward Anderson; Historian, Mrs. Andrew Okruch; Historian, Mrs. Andrew Misulich; and Sgt. at Arms, Mrs. Kermit Johnson.

Unit chairmen are: Americanism—Miss Millie Morelli; Child Welfare—Mrs. William Ralston; Civil Defense & National Security—Miss Gladys Morelli; Communications—Orphans and Hostess—Mrs. Neil Davidson; Constitution and By-Laws—also knives—Mrs. Erland Olson; Coupons—Mrs. Lawrence Larson; Education and Scholarship—Mrs. M.I. Jones; Foreign Relations—Mrs. Charles Fetzek; Legislative—Mrs. Kermit Johnson; Membership—and dishcloths—Mrs. George Zeedar; Poppy—Mrs. Merle Walters; Music—Mrs. Emil Nelson; program—Mrs. Ward Anderson; memorial fund—Mrs. Agnes Ross.

The first meeting of the Hamilton Township PTA was held September 28. Eugene Lucia, president, opened the meeting. A report was given on the carnival by Mrs. Gerald Walters and on the bazaar by Mrs. Ernest Anderson. The group was thanked by both women for their help. Mrs. Wilda Cochran and Mrs. Gerald Walters will represent the PTA at the Halloween party at the Legion Hall. The PTA will pay for the crackers the children have with their milk each day. There will be no Christmas program; an art show will be held in March instead. Some discussion was held on changing to PTO with a report given by Hugh Rich. The group voted to shelve the decision until next month. Hostesses were home room mother, Mrs. John Kulka, and Mrs. Eugene Lucia. Mrs. Alfred Johnson and Mrs. Carl Stranburg. The banner was won by the 2nd grade.

Rebekah Circle will meet at the home of Mrs. Lawrence Larson October 12 at 1 p.m.

CHURCH NOTES

At Moriah Lutheran Church on Sunday the Rev. Carl F. Eliason spoke on the sermon topic "Greatest in the Kingdom of Heaven." Acolyte was Tom Johnson. Flowers and folders were in memory of Nora Gilfert by Clyde, Natalie and Larry Gilfert. Memorial books were The Healing Power of Prayer, in memory of Mrs. Alida Johnson. The Guidepost Treasury of Faith in memory of Mr. and Mrs. Godfrey Anderson. Papa's Wife in memory of Mrs. Emma Anderson and Beyond Ourselves in memory of Leon Anderson by the Godfrey Anderson family.

Dr. James Woomer of Indiana, Pa. district superintendent of the Indiana District, United Methodist Church was the host to 18 pastors of the District at a retreat at Olmsted Manor during the week. Dr. Sidney Wion of Torrence State Hospital Staff was a resource person.

A church school class from the Kane United Methodist Church had a dinner meeting at Olmsted Manor on Wednesday.

A group of women from State Line United Methodist Church visited The Smith Childrens Home in Sheffield Thursday and had lunch at Olmsted Manor. Mrs. Shirley Pasche of North East was the chairman of the group.

Reverend and Mrs. George Campbell of Sheffield were hosts to 20 adult members of the Barnes United Methodist Church at a dinner meeting at the Manor Thursday.

The Rev. Gale Cook, pastor of Oakland Avenue United Methodist Church of Sharon led a spiritual life retreat at the Manor over the weekend for members of his church. The Rev. Melvin Steart of Clarion was the resource person.

Mrs. Herbert E. Boyd was the installing officer for the new officers of the Pittsburgh District Womens Society of Christian Service at the fall meeting of the District last Thursday.

PERSONALS

Chief Boyne Boyd, son of Reverend and Mrs. Herbert E. Boyd, has been transferred to the Caw, a Coast Guard vessel on Lake Erie. He has been the Officer in Charge of the Cleveland Life Boat Station for the past year. He is spending some leave time with his parents.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Senik of Maple Heights, Ohio, and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Fleming of Avon Lake, Ohio, spent the weekend at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Okruch.
